Lighter Shocks Served as Warning to Inhabitants Who Hastened to Safety—Start Rescue Work
Among Terror Stricken
People.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Catania, Sicily, May 9.—An earthquake and volcanic eruption followed by fire destroyed many villages located on the slope of Mt. Etna last night. Reports state that at least one hundred persons were killed and the number of injured reaches several hundred. Refugees declare that the property loss is as great as in the Messina disaster.

Railway tracks are torn up, churches and houses overturned and telephone poles broken off within a radius of several miles around Catania. Terror stricken people rushed from the villages into Catania before daybreak today, bringing stories of ruin and disaster with them. The Red Cross immediately prepared to take steps for relief work. The army, the navy and civil authorities received orders from Rome to render aid in the work of rescue. The interruption of railways and telegraph communication made it impossible to obtain any accurate details of the loss of life.

Official Death Report.
The number of dead at 138 and injured
at 233.

These figures will be increased by complete details from the wrecked villages.

Great casualties were prevented by the fact that the final severe shock was preceded by others and many of the population had abandoned their houses and fled into the open country.

The property loss was very great and included many villages. Churches and public buildings were destroyed and hundreds of houses fell to the ground. Nevertheless it is said by those engaged in the work of rescue that the death rate will not be so large as at first reported. According to refugees in some places completed the work of destruction and injured the efforts of rescuers.

One of the evidences of the severity of the series of shocks was indicated by the hundreds of telephone poles overturned. Half a mile of railway track was turned topsy-turvy near the village of Mangano.

Light Shocks Felt.
For several days shocks had been felt accompanied by eruptions of Mt.
Etna but no particular attention was paid to the occurrences as the inhabitants of the district are accustomed to these agitations and the shocks were not violent.

The first severe shock was felt last evening at seven o'clock but the fact that serious disturbance had occurred was not known in Catania for some time as railway and telegraph communication was interrupted. The extent of the catastrophe was not realized until this morning when the terror stricken refugees began to flood into town. The center of the disturbance at the village of Lincari where the property damage is great and losses of life heavy. The victims are mostly women and children. Work of rescue was rendered difficult because of the vast accumulation of debris.

Pitiful Rescue Scene.
Along the principal highways in the stricken district the scenes of today were heart rendering. Groups of refugees were encountered, many of them burdened with improvised litters made of branches of trees and bushes on which they were carrying injured and dying relatives to the temporary surgical station.

In the neighborhood of Santa Venerina the number of injured is very great. The authorities in command have ordered all automobiles to assist in the work of rescue.

Villages in Ruins.
The villages of Lincari and Consolini were transformed into heaps of ruins, and at Zafferano every house was destroyed and great damage occurred at Santa Venerina.

Roots fell in and walls collapsed in the hamlets of San Maria, Annata, Annunziata, Quindici, Mangano, Santa Lucia and Bongiorno. The village of Santa Maria Vergine was razed to the ground. Fifty persons are known to have lost their lives at Lincari, which was destroyed.

Among the ruins of Posos Passopisgongaro and Maltì twenty bodies have been found this morning.

The city of Catania, the scene of last night's earthquake, has probably suffered more than any section in the world from volcanic eruptions and earthquakes. It is built on a bed of lava and at the foot of the volcano or Etna, and most of its streets are paved with lava. It has a population of 140,000 and is the largest city in Sicily. It lies south of Messina on the east coast.

Ever since its foundation in B. C.
729 it has been visited frequently by earthquakes. In 121 A. D. it was partly destroyed by an eruption of Mt. Etna.

In 1169 it suffered from an earthquake. In 1669 during an eruption of Mt. Etna a stream of lava flowed toward Catania but in the nick of time its course was diverted and the town saved. In 1808 when the whole of the island of Sicily was affected by volcanic eruptions Catania was destroyed.

No Seismographic Record.
Cambridge, Mass., May 9.—Scientists at Harvard university today said that the Sicilian earthquake was of volcanic eruption, as no records of any disturbances during the past twenty-four hours are shown on the university seismograph. Shocks of a volcanic nature, it is explained, seldom extend far beyond the locality in which they originate. In the earthquake and tidal waves at Mexico and Calabria on Dec. 28, 1908, official figures gave the number of deaths as 77,233, but it was unofficially estimated that from one hundred and fifty to two hundred thousand people lost their lives. The damage to public and personal property amounted to about a billion dollars. The United States took a prominent part in the relief work with funds placed at their disposal by the American people. Sailors from the United States fleet erected a large number of houses.

SUFFRAGETTES PARADE
UNDER FLOWER ARCHES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, May 9.—Suffragettes from every state marched down Pen-sylvania avenue today in the big parade and demonstration under gar-lands of flowers which stretched from the White House to the capitol. From every standpoint it was one of the most beautiful and impressive scenes attended any suffrage celebration in this city. The artists' section forwarded the parade with a display of one of the striking features. Some weeks ago every woman artist in the country was invited to march and from today's indications everyone who could come here was in line. At tonight's meeting Mrs. Thomas M.
Henderson, president of the Woman's Suffrage Association of Connecticut, will be one of the speakers.

READY TO PLACE STATUE
ON TOP OF CAPITAL DOME.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 9.—The task of erecting a $20,000 statue on top of the mammoth new state house dome will begin shortly. It is of bronze, sixteen feet high, and is a single figure, designed by Daniel French of New York, and is named "Forward." At present it reposes in a wooden crate
in the west wing.

SECRETARY OF WAR SAYS NO

MORE AID TO FUNSTON

Will be Sent From Galveston if Con-

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., May 9.—Reiterating his declaration of yesterday that there were "nothing imminent in the Mexican situation," but contemplating what might happen, Secretary of War Garrison continued supervisions and preparations to send the balance of the second division of the army to Vera Cruz as a precautionary measure.

Orders have gone forward to the Fourth and Sixth brigade of Texas to be ready to reinforce General Funston when ordered forward. When the move will be made is undecided.
Throughout the day war officials were engaged in gathering transportation and up to noon, arrangements for eleven ships including four regular transports were made.

American Private Taken.
Anxiety was expressed at the State Department today over the reported capture of Sam Parks, a private, near Vera Cruz by the Mexicans. It is believed he rode into the Mexican lines while suffering from a temporary attack of insanity. Another report to

The American brig Geneva was captured on high seas April 28 by the Mexican transport Korriggan, according to information received here today. At the request, however, of Captain Magruder of the U. S. cruiser
Raleigh the brig was released.

The Federals have abandoned the gun boat Morelos. A wild shot from the Korriggan passed through the streets of the city, creating a panic.
The result of three day battle
the townspeople are in a state of terror and hundreds are fleeing.

Report American Killed.
It is reported that under the name of American, and G. Williams, an Englishman, were killed, and two other Americans, Walter Neal and Patrick Baird, wounded near El Salvador mine in the vicinity of Hostatiquillo.

There were many who feared the parade and the marching women were cheered loudly by the throngs that lined Pennsylvania avenue all the way from Lafayette square, opposite the White House, to the capitol and foremost was borne a banner twenty feet wide, bearing the inscription, "We demand the passage of the Bristow-Mondell resolution." Then came the "Four Bigs," the peace paraders, typifying Spring, Youth and Hope, which had been arranged under the direction of Mrs. Elphinstone Andrews, a well-known artist. Thousands of garlands of flowers were carried by the young women and children, the shades of the blossoms having been selected with an eye to harmonizing with the union's colors—purple, white and gold.

In this division also marched the chorus of 1,000 women led by Mrs.
Apolline M. Blair, president of the Rushville club of this city.

Attractive as was this part of the parade, it did not evoke any more enthusiasm or interest from the onlookers than the cavalry section which came next and was commanded by Major Julius Barrett Rublee of Washington, who was also the mounted grand marshal of the procession.

In advance of the cavalry contin-gent were seven color bearers on horseback, each carrying a purple, white and gold flag. At their head rode Miss Elsie Hill, daughter of former Representative Hill of Connecticut. Among the prominent cavalry women were Mrs. Denver S. Church, wife of Richard B. Church, of Illinois; Mrs. Charles Forrest Curry, wife of another California representative; Miss Mary Morgan of Washington, niece of Clifford Pinchot, formerly of the United States forest service; Mrs. Alice Duerksen, formerly of Australia, now of New York, and Miss Elizabeth Kent, daughter of Representative Kent.

Foot Marchers.
Mrs. George Odell was chairman of the foot marchers of the political division, which was next in line, and which was subdivided into various sections. The sections that created the most interest were those of the women writers and the actresses. The former was organized by Mrs. Marie Manning Gasch of Washington, and among those who trudged with her were Mrs. Zona Gale of Wisconsin,
Edna Reardon of Indiana, Helmer Sudet
Martin, Mrs. Adelaide Fairbanks, Tu-mons, daughter of former Vice President Fairbanks, and wife of Lieutenant Timmons, U. S. N.; Mrs. Rheta Child Dorr, Marguerite Spaulding, Gerry of New York, Alice Duerksen, formerly of Australia, now of New York, and Miss Elizabeth Kent, daughter

Miners' Strike.
Calumet, Mich., May 9.—The Tamarack mine, the last to reopen after having been closed last July because of the copper miners' strike has taken on 200 men this week and now is opening two shifts.

There are 200 in the Michigan
Copper mines nearly 18,000 men or 20,000 more than when the strike started.
It is claimed that practically no men have left the district while hundreds of men have come seeking work.

Iron mining camps on the other hand are laying off men because of the condition of the iron ore market.
More than 1,500 men it is claimed are idle.

TUBERCULOSIS EXPERTS

is expected that the score of delegates who have been attending the sessions here of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, will have departed for meetings today, but the officials and many delegates remained over to clear up a mass of routine business in relation to preliminary working plans for next year's convention.

What Co-operation
Means

It means the pulling together of all interests for a common purpose.

When manufacturer and dealer pull together, the purpose is increased sales.

The great meeting-ground for this work is the advertising column of local newspapers like The Gazette.

The advertising appeals directly to the buying public in the dealer's city and the name and the product of the manufacturer derive a great benefit through association with the dealer's local prestige.

Co-operative advertising in the newspapers is growing more and more in favor because it pays.

Write to the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper
Publishers' Association, World Building N. Y., for information about what other manufacturers are doing successfully along this line.

UTOPIANS DREAM OF UTILITY OWNERSHIP

ADVANCE ARGUMENTS ON WATERWORKS QUESTION BEFORE AUDIENCE OF FORTY.

ALL CLEAR SAILING

Believe Taxpayers Could Take Over Plant With Minimum Amount of Trouble and Expense.

Before an audience of less than forty persons at the city hall assembly room Friday evening, the utopian dreams of municipal ownership of the Janesville water plant were fully outlined. The fact that the audience was small was no damper to the ardor of exponents of city ownership, and although enthusiasm was lacking, it was a late hour before the meeting broke up.

J. J. Dulin, a prominent member of the socialist party in this city, was the principal speaker and with his arguments and theories well in hand, sought to demonstrate that all would be clear sailing, once the city gets possession of the water company's property.

J. J. Dulin, former alderman under the old council, called the meeting to order and presided during the course of the discussion. He explained that the meeting had been called for the purpose of fully discussing the city ownership proposition, that there was no prearranged program, and that any one who had suggestions or arguments to offer on either side was welcome to do so.

Mr. Dulin declared that if there had been one thing for which he had stood during his ten years of service in the city council, it had been city ownership of the water plant. He had worked to that end and would continue to do so as long as opportunity afforded as he was confident from his experience that other cities such as Woodstock, Rockford and Fort Atkinson, that it was not only feasible, but practicable.

Smith Has the Dope.

It was evident that the audience was waiting to hear from Mr. Smith, who has been studying carefully for the past few days the annual report of the water company, and who has prepared his arguments and conclusions in the most attractive form possible. Most of the figures given by Mr. Smith have appeared in the columns of the Gazette in the Thursday and Friday issues under his own signature. He went over the ground covered in these articles very carefully, elaborating here and there, urging that city ownership would be clear sailing, and the easiest and most natural thing in the world and could be secured with the minimum amount of expense and bother.

Some $34,000 in clear profits, he maintained, would be cleared by the city each year, which now goes to the pockets of the company. This could be applied on the purchase price which he said the commission would find at $227,000, perhaps a trifle less. He also elaborated on the method by which the city could pay for the property. The company had outstanding bonds amounting to $150,000, bearing five percent interest. He explained that the city would take over as a lien against the property and the city would then need to issue bonds for only the difference between $150,000 and $227,000, the purchase price, or $77,000.

Reviews the History.
Smith went carefully into the history of the water works agitation in Janesville. He recalled that in 1909 the company decided to charge water consumers for their meters and for the laying of service pipes from main to curb. Their patrons protested; they went to the city council; the council went to the railroad commission which investigated; the commission gave a decision in favor of the water consumers; the company took the matter to court and secured an injunction; Janesville citizens, incensed at these dilatory tactics, voted to buy the plant. But the end was not yet. Technical and legal questions were brought forth by the company to prevent the taking over of the plant by the city. The same questions were involved in the R. C. case so it was deemed advisable to await the supreme court's decision which favored the city. The commission started to proceed with the taking over of the local plant when the company discovered that there had been a technical error in the election and they again go to court and again they win.

"We are back now to where we started," declared Smith. "After the company has held in its attitude that it could violate the laws and the orders of the state commission which the people must obey, we have come back to the same proposition of municipal ownership which, I believe, will again carry. If Janesville voters are fair and will use their judgment, not colored by personal prejudice, but influenced by calm deliberation."

A PEACE FOUNDATION

The tremendous stimulus which the opening of the Panama Canal will give to the trade of Central and South American will cause the unrest of anarchy in these countries to be crowded to the wall, and bring the unrest of commercial ambitions to the west coast of South America will attract the energies and the wealth of the world to an extent utterly undreamed of while the only trade route lay around Cape Horn.

It is as a peace foundation, and not alone as a great international waterway, that the Panama Canal will live in the memory of the human race. Peace has its victories no less than war, according to an old adage, and as a mighty force for universal peace the fifty mile hole the United States has dug in the continental divide will shine forever in history.

Frederic J. Haskin, author of "The American Government," has written a book that tells all about the Big Ditch. The Panama Canal is an illustrated volume of nearly 400 pages which explains the canal, its construction, its simple way-all phases of this gigantic undertaking.

WEATHER EXPERTS FORETELL CHANGES

Telegraph Plays Important Part in Sending Out Daily Bulletins as Well as to Expect.

Sometimes the Weather Man makes such poor forecasts that people jump to the conclusion that he must be guessing at the weather. Just like everybody else. But he doesn't. How he does his work is thus set forth in the Department of Agriculture weekly news letter:

The weather forecasts are made by telegraph. The weather forecaster does not look out of the window and guess. Give him his telegraph wires and he can make his predictions as accurately in a windowless cellar as on the top of New York's highest skyscraper. With the aid of the telegraph the Weather Man sees every storm in the country. He knows in what direction and at what speed each is moving, and thus can calculate with reasonable accuracy the approximate time when it will reach any place in its route.

Twice a day, at eight in the morning and eight in the evening, reports are telegraphed to Washington from about 200 observers stationed in as many different localities in the United States and Canada. From this information, the weather map of the United States is made up, showing the conditions that prevail in every part of the country. Since there are two maps for each day, it is obvious that by comparing them the forecaster can look back on the course and progress of both storms and periods of clear weather.

This map is the basis of all scientific weather forecasting. A glance at it will show that it is divided into "high pressure areas" and "low pressure areas." These are technical terms used to describe the regions in which the weight of pressure of the atmosphere is great (high) or small (low). At sea level the barometer, which is used to measure this weight, normally stands at thirty inches under normal conditions of the atmosphere. When it registers more than this, say 30.5 or 31, the pressure is "high"; when 29.5 or less, "low."

Low pressures usually mean strong winds, rain and rising temperature. The "high" and "low" travel in a general direction from west to east. Tropical sun heats great masses of air, which rise and drift toward the north and south poles. These masses of air, revolving from west to east at the same rate as the equator, begin, as they approach the poles, to move much faster than the earth beneath them. There is thus a constant movement of the atmosphere from west to east, which becomes more marked the nearer one gets to the poles.

This, of course, does not mean that the wind always blows from the west. The great current flows in that direction, but surface conditions cause innumerable eddies, which are the winds we feel. In a low pressure area, for instance, the air rushes from every direction. Thus, if the center of the disturbance is to the west of us, we shall have an easterly wind as the air rushes toward this center; when the storm has reached and passed us on its easterly way we will have westerly winds. For this reason it is common to say that west winds means clear weather.

The air that flows into the low-pressure area obviously must rise. As it rises it cools and contracts. In the process the moisture it contains is condensed and we are likely to have rain.

In regard to temperature, every one has noticed that rain in winter means warm weather, in summer cool weather. This arises from the fact that heat travels more easily through clear skies than through clouds and moisture.

Thus the pressure of the atmosphere is the key to the weather, affecting the three vital questions of rain, temperature and wind. The weather maps tell the forecaster the conditions for the last few days, the telegraph tells him of the conditions at the moment, and with this information he tries to predict the conditions for the immediate future.

To be sure, the weather and the predictions frequently do not agree. But that is the weather's fault.

OFFICERS ELECTED

FOR THE GUN CLUB

Name Ten Members for Board of Directors who Elect Officers at Meeting of Rod and Gun Club.

T. E. Green, president; William Mason, vice president and Robert Heidt secretary and treasurer, were the officers elected by the directors of the Rock County Rod and Gun Club for the coming year at last night's meeting held at the city hall council chambers.

At the opening of the meeting it was proposed to change the number on the board of directors from fifteen to thirty, allowing Beloit and Janesville to have five officers, Evansville and Edgerton two, and one in each township. With directors in the different townships, there would be a better organized club and with this view the motion was passed. Because of the present limited membership in townships outside of Janesville, the members were unable to elect a full board. For Janesville William Taylor, C. E. Snyder, W. E. Lawyer, William Mason, and F. J. Harry Ash, and directors from La-Prairie, Edward Parker; Harmony, John Wixom; Beloit, T. S. Wittie.

The secretary was instructed to order application blanks to supply the members to circulate among the county sportsmen. In two weeks the newly elected board members will go to Beloit to promote the club there with the aid of T. S. Wittie and William Mason who offered to obtain the services of sportsmen in the different townships to secure members. By next month it is hoped that the club roster will number a thousand members throughout the county. The remainder of the men to be on the board of directors will be as membership is gained in those districts.

Letters were read showing that the club had been successful in their efforts to secure the fish fry and "fingerlings" from the state hatchery and from the Washington D. C. department. Discussion was held over the distribution of honor badges to juvenile members and it was agreed that system should be made whereby to obtain these badges was by a good effort by the boys from the ages of ten to eighteen and their willingness to work for the protection of game.

H. R. Patterson, employee of the Remington and U. C. company addressed the members and praised the work of the organization for realizing the need of protection to obtain good sport showing also the effect of the federal game law. Game Warden Mason spoke to the members on the fact that what the state authorities were unable to accomplish, results with arresting violators yearly and to place the interest of the sportsmen on game protection and propagation up to the men themselves was matter of great interest and benefit.

"Excellent Tonic"

827 W. 15th St., Pueblo, Col.

"Peruna is an excellent tonic for the weakness that follows grip. If everybody could have a bottle or two of Peruna after they have had grip they would get well a great deal sooner than they usually do."

"There is no better medicine in the world for colds and grip than Peruna. One bottle did more to relieve me of a bad cold and case of grip than any remedies that I have ever taken."

Other things being equal, the ready-to-take medicine is the cheaper. On this phase of the subject Mrs. Weir says:

"I am a widow with a very small income, and have to look to every penny very closely. Under these circumstances your medicine is a godsend to me. One bottle of Peruna has accomplished for me more than an expensive course of treatment of any other sort. Of this I feel sure. As a matter of economy every one ought to have a bottle of Peruna in the house."

TALKS ON THRIFT

No. 8—Thrifty Home Gardeners

"There is but one practical solution of the high cost of living, and that is to raise your own produce. The home garden in a great measure will do it and do it effectively. It will stop the paying of money to the 'Vegetable man' and the growing of a big saving. And those who are so situated that they can raise their own poultry and eggs, milk and butter, and a pig or two for winter's meat, poultry, may be said to be directly on the line of independence, with every acre of the high cost of living completely blocked."
—D. D. Lynch, St. Paul.

The recent extension of the Parcel Post system, making provision for the direct delivery of farm produce from the producer to the consumer, is a long step in the right direction toward reducing the high cost of living, as it will tend to eliminate the great army of middlemen, now between the producer and the consumer, each of whom must have his "bit" added to the final cost before it reaches the consumer.

But this alone will not reduce the high cost of living, for it is not at all likely that the farmer will continue to sell his produce at the present price when he finds the middleman removed, but will proportionately raise the price. So the delivery direct to the consumer eventually will prove of greatest benefit to the farmer.

Perhaps it is only a matter of time when every man of family who depends upon his daily wage, will be forced to press into producing service a portion of his back yard, even though he may have but a single lot, as a plot for a home garden, to reduce the present high cost of living.

And right now is the time to consider this matter if you are going to do anything in the home gardening line this year, raising vegetables to lower your individual cost of living and to enable you to have a larger margin of savings in the bank.

The seed companies will furnish you with catalogs and at the hardware store you can get the few necessary tools. Then go to work. You will learn by experience, and your health and your appetite will improve while you turn bareness into beauty and your backyard desert into an oasis of productiveness.

And here is a hint which you will find valuable if you really want to save money by means of your home garden—plant and cultivate not only those things which you can eat right out of your garden during the summer, carrots, beans and parsnips.

Hire as little help as possible. Let most of the work be done by yourself and your family, if you want to make your garden pay.

And as you watch things grow under your care, consider likewise how your bank account will grow with your constant attention and the interest which the bank pays on deposits.

REAL FACTS TO CONSIDER IN WATER WORKS MATTER BEFORE ELECTION TUESDAY

PUNGENT FACTS RELATIVE TO COST TO CITY IF VOTE FAVORS PURCHASE.

THEORETICAL FIGURES

While Physical Valuation is $227,000 It Will Cost City Over $300,000 to Purchase Plant.

Theorists have figured out to a fine point that the city of Janesville can purchase the Janesville Water Company's plant for approximately $226,700, the physical valuation of the plant as fixed by the state railroad commission in a circular issued and distributed they make the following statement:

Though the original investment of the corporation according to its own figures is $176,000, the railroad commission has placed upon it an existing value of $226,700, which undoubtedly will be the price the city will have to pay for this amount the city will issue bonds paying say, 4 1/2 per cent interest, amounting to a total of $10,201.50 a year. To this we will add the operating expense, which when stripped of all useless figures like office rent, and salaries to president, secretary and treasurer, and commission on collections, of $12,500, or a total expense charge of $22,700. Deducting this amount from the $226,700, there will be left in the treasury over $23,000. This amount will go into the sinking fund and at the end of ten years will amount to a total of $23,000, or more than enough to pay off the whole bond issue.

This is all right in theory, but what will be the actual facts. According to the figures made out by the city council while the suit in the supreme court was pending, they figured that it would cost the city $315,000 to actually consummate the purchase of the plant. Nearly a hundred thousand dollars difference between the actual cost and the theoretical figures. The question is asked where does this difference come in? It is easily explained. With the physical valuation for that is what the $226,700 is, must be added what is known as the going value, the business value, if you prefer to call it such, and the good will of the concern. Of course this is what may be termed "blue sky," but it is recognized by the commission that they have allowed for this in other cities where the municipal ownership has been undertaken.

This going value and good will can be roughly estimated at eighty to ninety thousand dollars, bringing up the total cost to over $300,000 instead of $226,700. A slight difference. Complain as we may about the railroad commission, they will not permit a concession of property by even a municipality, and the city is not scheduled to take over the plant until the next election of 1912. Then they ordered the rates enforced, and unless the present election changes the aspect of the situation they will be in force by July 1.

Theorists hold out the thought that if the city owns the plant it can make its own rate. This is not correct. The city can not make its rates. The state railroad commission does that. Before a change can be made application must be made to them and they pass upon it, taking into consideration every detail of the cost of management, bond issues and the profit that must be made to pay off the outstanding indebtedness and with the present status of affairs it would be a revision upwards not downward to meet existing conditions.

The following are figures relative to the whole situation, which if carefully studied will demonstrate the actual status of affairs. They have been carefully prepared and verified, and give true valuations, and are not theoretical.

Under the most recent order of the railroad commission, the receipts of the water plant, with the present consumption, would be as follows:

Flat rates $13,629.91
Meter rates 1,265.33
Before a change can be made application must be made to them and they pass upon it, taking into consideration every detail of the cost of management, bond issues and the profit that must be made to pay off the outstanding indebtedness and with the present status of affairs it would be a revision upwards not downward to meet existing conditions.

To be paid by city:
Hydrants $15,800.00
Fountains 540.00
Parks 150.00
Theorists (Est.) 323.35
15 churches (Est.) 60.00
City Hall (Est.) 40.00
Engine Houses 21.00
Library (Est.) 4.00
Total income under new rating $38,668.91

Expenses for 12 months $21,420.64
Expenses for officers 2,000.00
Taxes 3,860.77
Total $27,281.41

The items of expenses are labor and fuel, and the operation of the plant, excepting the salaries of the officers of the company, taxes and interest upon bonded indebtedness.

Receipts under the new rating $38,668.91
Expenses 27,281.41
Net from operation $11,387.50

If the city purchases it will certainly not be able to operate the plant any more economically than the company operates it. If the city purchases the plant it will have to carry an interest charge of about $15,000.00 per year, if the city receives as good a return and operated the plant as economically as the company, there would be a loss of the difference between its interest charge of $15,000.00 and the net return of $11,387.50, or the sum of $3,612.50.

The account with the city would stand as follows:

Loss from operation $3,612.50
Payment by city for water 16,668.91
Total cost of water to city $20,281.41

On the new rates there is no service charge for meters and no interest allowance for meters, so that the city were compelled to put in meters under the present order of the railroad commission, there would be an additional investment of about twenty thousand dollars ($20,000.00) on the part of the city, on which it would have to pay interest, and would be also to the additional expense of the care of meters and depreciation of meters, which would not be wholly offset by the increase of meter rates.

Under the old rates, last year's income was $46,106.57. Last year more was charged for officers' salaries than as above stated, but taking the basis of only $2,000.00 for salaries of officers, the city cannot even so well as the commission as being proper the expenses would be $27,281.41, leaving the income from operation the difference between the $46,106.57 and $27,281.41 and $18,825.16.

Out of this sum must be paid the bond interest, the extensions, etc., and the depreciation of the plant must be taken care of. The bond interest of the company is $9,325.00 per year, leaving $9,500.16 for extensions, profits of operation and to take care of the depreciation of the plant.

The city cannot even so well as the commission as being proper the expenses would be $27,281.41, leaving the income from operation the difference between the $46,106.57 and $27,281.41 and $18,825.16.

Under the new order of the city would pay $16,938.35 for these same items, and if the city purchases the plant, it would be compelled to make up a deficiency of $2,341.50, or a total payment of $20,281.41 by the city for the water it uses which is now getting under the old rates for $7,700.

Who would be benefited by this change? Certainly water users could get a reduction on the price of the water, which would in most cases be offset, and in many cases exceeded, by the increase in their taxes.

The water users would stand the loss. The taxpayers and the city taxpayers would be at a considerable loss without any decrease in their expenses whatever. It is safe to say that in most cases the increase in tax upon the water user would amount to as much or more than the saving he would make upon the water that he uses individually.

Can the city manage the plant as well as the company? It never has managed any of the operations as economically as private parties. The purchase by the city is one more commission operation and one more increase in taxes, which have been being contending against for the past number of years.

A comparison of water cost to the consumers of other cities is of no value unless it also shows how much it cost a city for the water, because this additional cost will be made up by addition to the taxes.

Agricultural and Garden Dept.

ALLEN B. WEST, Director.

In this department Professor West will answer all questions on agricultural and garden matters each Saturday. As your interest in the department develops, a more frequent insertion of the queries and answers will be made. Address all communications signed with your name to the Agricultural Department, Gazette. Your name will be withheld, if desired. If personal answer is also desired, enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.

Gazette readers will be pleased to know that an arrangement has been made with Prof. Allen B. West, head of the agricultural class of the University of Wisconsin, to conduct an agricultural garden department for the Daily Gazette. Prof. West has been a regular contributor to the Gazette on current agricultural and garden matters and his subjects have been timely and of value, dealing entirely with those conditions which are of interest to southern Wisconsin people.

The new department will be conducted as a question box, that is, the question which you ask will be answered through the department in the Gazette so that others may benefit by the subject which you bring up for discussion.

Where a special personal letter is required a stamped envelope should be enclosed with your inquiry, and Prof. West will answer directly to you.

Your name will not be used in the questions and answers in the paper, if you prefer not to have it, but name and address must be attached to your inquiry.

The new agricultural and garden department appears first today and will continue once each week or more often if the interest in it demands it. Its liberal use by every interested person is invited and it is hoped that Gazette readers will make use of a source of information which deals with local conditions entirely. It will be the means of solving perplexing problems in the quickest and easiest way.

Matters pertaining to the garden as well as the farm will receive the same attention.

Question—How many may be in a cow's avoided when turning on to green pasture?

Answer—Bloat comes from indigestion and if changes are made gradually, that is less likely to occur. Before turning cows out to pasture it is best to feed hay, or their usual fodder, and turn out after they are pretty well fed up on that. Keeping them out only a short time, say an hour or so the first day, gradually lengthening the time daily until they are in the pasture all the time. Cattle should be kept off of clover and alfalfa fields entirely when the weather is damp and full of moisture and electricity. The trouble entailed in so doing is well worth it, if thereby one avoids the risk of losing one or more valuable animals.

Dr. Alexander of the Wisconsin Agricultural College says that bloat is less likely to occur if cattle are allowed free access to a mixture of equal parts of salt and slaked lime when going on to green clover and alfalfa.

Address all questions to Allen B. West, Janesville High School.

Question—When shall I spray my apple trees?

Answer—Among people in general there seems to be a great difference of opinion about the proper time to spray. This is owing to a confusion of knowledge about what to spray for. In general it is known that one sprays to secure perfect fruit, but there is lack of definite knowledge about the cause of imperfect fruit.

In this locality there are three principal enemies of the apple which may be controlled by spraying. They are first, scab; second, codling moth, (which causes wormy apples); third, oyster shell scale.

For scab one should spray three times, first just before the blossoms open, using Bordeaux mixture. Second, just after blossoms drop. Third, ten days later.

For codling moth, three sprayings. Use arsenate of lead, combined with Bordeaux mixture and spray, first just after blossoms drop. (This spraying and the second for scab may be done at same time.) Second, ten days later (also same time as for scab). Third, last week of July or first week of August for second brood of moths.

AMERICAN OFFICERS STUDY FRENCH ARMY TRAINING IN PARIS

Expect Hundred American Delegates at International Congress of Commerce Chambers June 8th to 13th.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, May 9.—The movement of American troops to France for the purpose of studying the French army, representing all branches of the service are on duty in France for instruction in French military training. The French government has given upon request of the United States and are welcomed in the friendliest spirit. It appears to be the intention of the war department at Washington to have its officers on duty in France on service in France so that French experience and French military science may from year to year be available for the United States army. Occasionally an English officer or officers from the Balkan and other similar states have had permission to serve with one or another of the French regiments, but it would seem that no foreign army, not even the Russian, has during this generation had such opportunities to know the French military system as the Americans now have.

American Officers.
Captain W. A. Castle is in an infantry regiment at Orleans, Captain N. Marcet and Lieutenant A. T. Bishop with other regiments at Châlons-sur-Marne. Lieutenant E. T. Bond with the division of the 1st Cavalry, Lieutenant W. F. Martin at the cavalry school at Saumur, Captain F. H. Pope in the French quartermaster's school and Captain Frank Parker at the war college at Fontenay-le-Comte. The American quartermaster's division and Lieutenant B. S. Treble and Honeycutt of the artillery have just arrived to replace three other American officers and others are expected. The latter do not get into the French service until October. In the meantime they are required to live in French families and perfect their knowledge of French.

In War College.
Captain Parker in the war college, the exclusive school of higher strategy, has probably the rarest opportunity and one not shared by any other foreign officer. Eighty French officers are admitted annually out of from 400 to 500 applicants who take the severe competitive examination. Years of study are devoted to the French officer in preparation for this examination because all selections for the general staff are made from graduates of the war college and no French officer need expect a high command until he has been one of the successful through this training in the deeper problems of strategy.

Given Privileges.
An armchair has been placed for Captain Parker apart from the other officers and the French staff platform so that the American guest may have a better chance than anyone else to follow the exposition of a subject and see the diagrams, and work in the war college. Several of the officers in the war college are from the United States. Part of the day explaining the operations of the troops that are in the field.

American Delegates.
Nearly a hundred American delegates are expected to attend the international congress of chambers of commerce which meets in Paris June 8th and continues five days. Daniel P. Kuyssley, George T. Wilson, Samuel W. Fairchild, James Brown and Macdonald Hawkes will come from New York, while delegates equally largely will come from two or three other American cities, among them Boston, Baltimore, Atlanta, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Louisville, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago, Kansas City, St. Paul, Omaha, Denver, Seattle, Portland, Oregon and San Francisco.

Edward A. Filene of Boston and the American member of the permanent committee which has offices in Brussels are endeavoring to reorganize the International Association of Chambers of Commerce so that it shall become a more vital body. The permanent committee now has only the function of carrying out the resolutions passed by the biennial congresses. The American representation desired to have a committee, which will take up and carry through new business as it arises during the intervals of the congress. The committee would be authorized to take a referendum of the membership in the permanent committee now done by the chamber of commerce of the United States of America, organized in Washington in 1912.

RULERS OF DENMARK VISIT KING GEORGE

Official Festivities Arranged in Honor of Visit of King and Queen of Denmark.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, May 9.—The king and queen of Denmark arrived in London this afternoon on a four days' state visit to King George. The royal visitors, who were accompanied by Foreign Minister Seamenius, crossed the North Sea on the Danish royal yacht Dannebrog, escorted by Danish and British warships, and landed at Queenborough this morning amid the thunder of salutes from the warships and forts.

After the formal reception by the British naval and military commanders, the royal party traveled by special train to London, where, at Victoria station they were welcomed by King George, Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, the Prince of Wales, and other royal figures. The Danish minister of foreign affairs, and a host of military and naval officials, cabinet ministers, etc.

The Danish national anthem was played at the train at the platform, and a guard of honor of the Grenadier Guards presented arms. King George, out of compliment to his guests, was in the uniform of a Danish admiral, crossed with the ribbon of a Danish order, and King Christian wore a British naval uniform. He had no British order but King George intends remedying this during the next few days by making him a knight of the Garter.

Family greetings were followed by a round of presentations, after which the royal party and court officials entered the waiting carriages and drove, escorted by a battery of troops of the Life Guards, to Buckingham palace, where the Danish visitors are to stay until Wednesday. The route from the station was lined by troops and great crowds gave them an enthusiastic welcome. King

Christian is first cousin to King George, and nephew of Queen-Mother Alexandra, and at the conclusion of the state visit, the Danish monarch and his consort will put in a couple of days incognito at Marlborough House as Queen Alexandra's guests.

Among the official festivities arranged in their honor are a gala performance at the Royal Opera House on Monday night and luncheon with the lord mayor at Guild hall on Tuesday, followed by a state banquet and ball at the palace.

EMPEROR OF GERMANY TO TRY EXPERIMENT IN ALPINE COMPANY

Catholic Church Issues Warning to Parents Condemning Immorality Attire of Young Girls.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Geneva, Switzerland, May 9.—The emperor of Germany, who since his visit to the Swiss mountains two years ago, has shown great interest in the Swiss army, believes that the present somewhat dark uniform worn by the Swiss Alpine troops makes them too conspicuous against a background of snow. He has therefore just forwarded through his minister of war a hundred square yards of specially made gray cloth to the federal government. The gift has been accepted with thanks and the cloth now is being converted into uniforms for the Alpine company, as an experiment. It is not said, however, that if the experiment proves a success the emperor will provide a larger stock of cloth to the Swiss Alpine battalions.

Indecent Attire.
The Catholic church, having condemned indecent attire of women, has carried the war a step further. The archbishop of Besancon has issued a warning to parents through all the abbeys and convents in his diocese which touches the western Swiss frontier, that in the future neither confirmation nor communion will be given to young girls who are dressed in the present extreme fashions, which in his opinion are indecent. Following as the order issued to young girls must not have their arms naked and above all they must not come to church decollete. If the present ridiculous fashion continues we shall be obliged to make examples and refuse to admit to confirmation and the communion young girls dressed up in the images of the modern world.

Prince Arrested.
A young man of distinguished appearance who calls himself Prince Karagorzevitch, and who has been supposed to be a son of the king of Serbia, was arrested at Lugano recently accused of cheating at cards. He appears to have had many victims among rich American and English tourists at bridge and baccarat. The occupied magnificent apartments and the luxurious party. He usually lost when the stakes were small but when they were high he won. Finally two women suspected him of cheating and informed the police. A detective who passed as a rich American from New York—registered at one of the hotels and was presently introduced to the circle of the prince. The usual thing happened. The stakes were high and the prince was winning. After making sure that marked cards were being used the detective called in several agents of police, and took the "prince" and all his baggage to the police station.

Biggest Rubber Tree of All.
What is believed to be the largest rubber tree in the world stands in the Brazilian territory of Acre, on the frontier of Bolivia. Its stem is 27 feet 7-10 inches in circumference at the base. For 120 years every year this colossal gives 22 pounds of rubber a day. At present prices this brings $2,150 a year, or a fair interest on about $50,000, to its owners, a family of seven Serlingueiros.

Not Patented.
Co-operation is the keynote in successful accident prevention work. Many large manufacturers who have designed accident prevention devices for their own use have not patented them in order that others may utilize their ideas. A large railroad company which has designed all of the accident prevention apparatus in use in its machine shops is willing to furnish blueprints of the devices to those who desire to install them in their plants.

PANAMA OFFICIALS AWAIT OPENING OF CANAL TO TRAFFIC

Thousands Seek Information on Service and Facilities for Traffic—Discuss Passenger Tolls.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Panama, May 9.—Since announcement that the Panama canal probably will be ready for traffic by July this year, many letters of inquiry regarding the conditions to be imposed have been coming to the canal authorities from all parts of the world. It is apparent that steamship companies of the great maritime nations expect to make an almost immediate use of the canal.

The communications also indicate that in virtually all cases the companies contemplate a through service from European ports to those on the west coast of North, Central and South American countries. Among the inquiries are those regarding tolls, conditions of navigation, pilotage in entering the terminal ports, and through the canal, and the charges for the service, wharfage facilities at Balboa and Colon, the equipment and provisioning facilities and a host of other items relating directly to the usage of the canal.

Seek Information.
Most of these questions are addressed to the governor of the Panama canal direct while others are sent to Washington and are forwarded to the isthmus. It is not said, however, that the newly appointed superintendent of transportation, who will be instructed by the governor to supply the desired information. Steamship companies which already are represented on the isthmus have sent their local representatives to the canal officials seeking similar information.

Expect Great Traffic.
It is apparent to the canal authorities that as soon as the waterway shall have been thrown open much greater use of it will be made than has been anticipated. It has been stated that not more than 10,000,000 tons of traffic could be expected for the first year the canal is in operation. The extent of inquiry seems to make it plain to the authorities here that already a great tonnage for the first year is indicated.

Passenger Tolls.
Passenger-carrying lines are evincing considerable interest in the question of passenger tolls through the canal. This subject seems not to have been settled to the satisfaction of the companies who desire to be indemnified whether tolls will be charged at all, and if so, at what rate. The letters indicate that most of the companies are preparing for a heavy passenger traffic through the canal next year at or about the time of the formal opening and are anxious to the extent of the tolls to be charged.

Start Politics.
With the arrival of Ramon Valdez, Panamanian minister to London, politics became active and there are indications that he will wage a heated campaign for the presidency of the republic in the coming year. Dr. Valdez is known to be the candidate of the liberal party and is supported by the majority of the population. He is now in the department of foreign affairs, was brought back to Panama to begin an early and aggressive campaign.

At present political activities center about the coming election of thirty-six members of the national assembly which takes place in July. Interests are old, but in 1914 the candidates of the liberal party are unopposed, the conservative party not taking any part in the contest. The latter maintain they are saving their strength for the presidential election when they contemplate putting forth a strong candidate who can win the favor of the United States government officials on the isthmus.

Dr. Valdez probably will be opposed in his own party for the presidential honor by Rodolfo Chiari, secretary of government and justice in the Porras cabinet. A split in the ranks of the liberals is indicated, but probably will not result in consequences for the reason that the party is by far the larger of the two. Secretary Chiari, it is declared, has the support of Dr. Carlos A. Monge, a former president of the republic, and one of the strongest political leaders in the country.

Railway Started.
Work on the Chiriqui railway, in the western part of the republic, has been started. Within a week after the ceremonies incident to the beginning of work at David and which were attended by President Porras, supplies were being shipped by sea to Pedrekal, the port from which the railway extends into the interior. The line will penetrate the most important agricultural country of the republic and is expected to prove a great trade stimulant with the coffee country in the mountains north of David.

All in the Vision.
Some people think that everything in the world is twisted and corrupt, and that no human being can be trusted. Others who are wiser feel very differently about it. As Ruskin says: "In all things throughout the world, the men who look for the crooked will see the crooked, and the man who looks for the straight will see the straight."

At Least One.
"Every one has some secret sorrow," says a philosophizing friend. "Even the fattest and jolliest of us has a skeleton in his closet."

COMMITTEE OPPOSES PANAMA CANAL BILL

Measure Has Been Reported to the Senate Without Recommendation
—Adverse Decision
Expected.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., May 9.—The Panama canal bill has been reported to the senate from the committee on inter-oceanic canals, "without recommendation," which is equivalent to an adverse report. The committee, which is democratic, refused to report the bill favorably. The growing sentiment throughout the country against the surrender of American rights at Panama but apparently has reached the White House, as evidenced by the amendment offered by Senator Simmons, the administration spokesman on the committee, providing:

"That neither the passage of this act, nor anything therein contained, shall be construed or held as waiving, impairing or affecting any treaty or other right possessed by the United States."

This amendment, which the committee adopted, is a complete reversal of the president's position. In his message before congress he expressed the belief that we have violated a treaty, although his two predecessors, Roosevelt and Taft, expressed views directly to the contrary. Now he sanctions the insertion of an amendment which declares that the passage of the act was not to be regarded as affecting the treaty or other rights possessed by the United States. The opinion is becoming general among members of congress that the president is less enthusiastic for repeal than he was originally. The elections in Alabama, New Jersey and Massachusetts have somewhat lessened his enthusiasm for the surrender of American rights. When the measure was before the house the president insisted that no amendment be accepted. Now, for political effect, he sanctions an amendment, and Secretary Bryan in a long editorial in the Commonwealth makes a labored argument to prove that the acquiescence in the demands of Great Britain is not a surrender of American rights, a most absurd position.

Some very strong testimony against repeal was given while the bill was pending before the senate committee on inter-oceanic canals. No hearings were allowed in the house, but in the senate a rule is not permitted. William R. Wheeler, representing the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, gave testimony showing the effect of the repeal of the free toll provision upon the Pacific coast states.

Advocates of a toll charge on domestic commerce attempt to excuse the charge on the ground that it is so small when distributed over cargo tonnage—say 50 or 60 cents per ton—announced by the carrier. This estimate is based upon the assumption that every vessel operating through the canal will be loaded to her dead weight capacity at all times.

A ship with a net registered capacity of 3,000 tons and a toll of $9,600 every time it passes through the canal. The average ship infrequently goes to sea loaded to its full capacity. If half filled the toll upon each ton of cargo actually carried will double as the ship is charged according to its capacity. Every practical steamship man in fixing his rates of freight is very likely to add more for tolls than he actually pays out.

Joseph Teal, a prominent democrat of Oregon, in his testimony, said: "Twenty-five per cent of the fruit crop annually is permitted to rot because we cannot get it to the eastern markets at rates that justify gathering it. The fruit business in time must collapse unless we get rid of our enormous waste. If we had lower rates a market for lower grades of fruit would develop and the people would have the advantage of cheaper fruits."

Secretary Bryan's treaty with Colombia has raised such a protest that it will not be taken up by the senate. While the provisions of this instrument have not been published in the United States, extracts were cabled from Paris, and through these foreign dispatches it was learned that not only is the United States to pay Colombia $25,000,000, which is highly objectionable, but that coupled with the gift is a humiliating apology. In this connection members of congress are refreshing their memories concerning our dealing with Colombia. Senator Lodge on April 23rd had printed as a senate document certain papers relating to our acquisition of the canal zone.

It is recalled that in 1903 the treaty with Colombia was ratified by the United States senate. This treaty had been entered into at the earnest solicitation of Colombia, and every concession was made to the people and to the government of Colombia. At that time it was questioned if we had not been too generous. We agreed to pay $10,000,000 down and $250,000 per annum in perpetuity, which was substantially the amount asked for by Colombia.

When the Colombian legislature was called upon to act the vote against ratification was unanimous, and it was generally understood that the Colombian government secretly opposed ratification. The truth really is that the cupidity of the Colombians was

UMBRELLA'S NEW FIELD

Lamps for Diffusing the Rays.

If you should walk into a shop or store and see the electric lamps all with umbrellas over them, they are not there for the purpose of shielding the lamps from the rain, as might be supposed at first thought, but they comprise a new scheme of illumination. The umbrellas are made of some light-colored material and this, coupled with their shape, which is well suited for the dissemination of the light from the lamp, sends all the light rays below, where they are wanted, and not aloft where they are of little or no service. This scheme is the most recent modification of the process of illumination, known as the "indirect system," which has been tried in one form or another and has met with general approval. The direct rays of the light never strike the eyes or the work, for that matter, but the light is shielded and the rays sent upward and reflected down. This means a general diffusion of light is accomplished which is said to be more effective than one which produces many shadows.

UMBRELLAS TO DEFLECT LIGHT.

aroused at the prospect of "easy money" from the United States and an attempt was made to hold up Uncle Sam for a larger amount, and the government refused to be blackmailed.

Now a democratic administration is negotiating a treaty granting $25,000,000 to Colombia with apologies for refusing to be held up. It is not surprising that even Secretary Bryan knew enough to withdraw the treaty. The democratic senators have had their loyalty put to a most severe test in the tolls controversy. That bitter un-American dose has not tasted right.

Wood Restored.

Woodwork which has grown dull with time and the accumulation of dust may be restored by first cleaning thoroughly with kerosene on a flannel cloth, says the Washington Herald. It should then be polished with a mixture of two parts of turpentine to one of linseed oil. Apply this with a soft cloth and rub with flannel until every trace of the liquid seems to have disappeared. Repeated applications and continued rubbing will give a rich gloss to wood trim or mahogany furniture.

How the Navy Cares for the Health of the Sailors Who Man Our Battleships While They Are At Sea.

It is said that "Republics are ungrateful," but this adage is certainly inapplicable and untrue as respects the rewards and treatment of the sailor boys who man our battleships. Their pay is far more remunerative than what is received in other countries for similar services, their food and clothing of a greater quantity and higher quality, and the comforts and conveniences they enjoy exceed even those accorded to many of the commissioned officers of other nations.

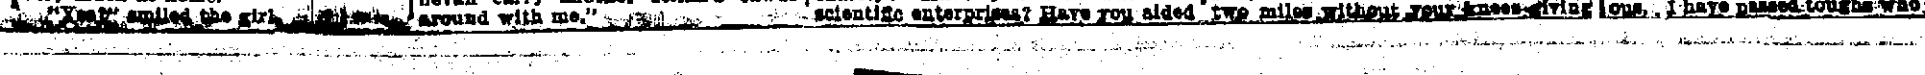

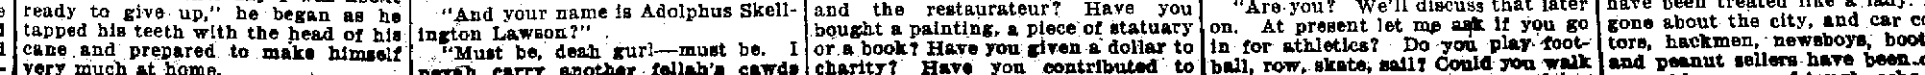

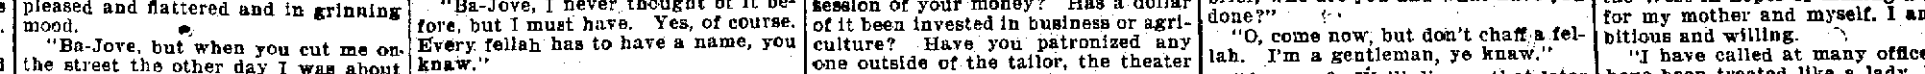

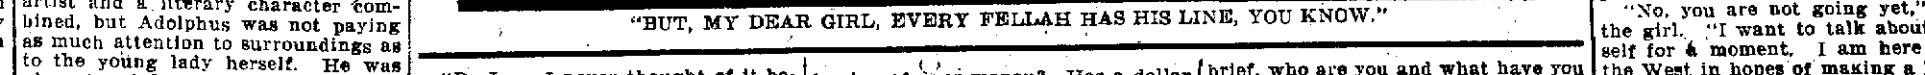

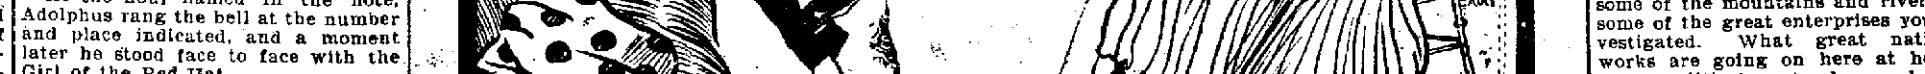

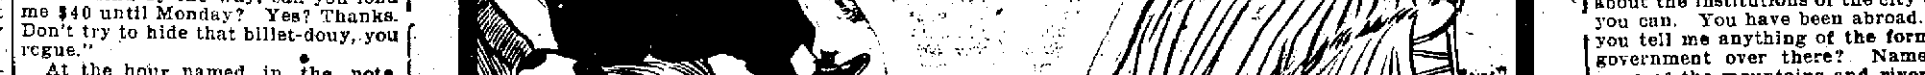

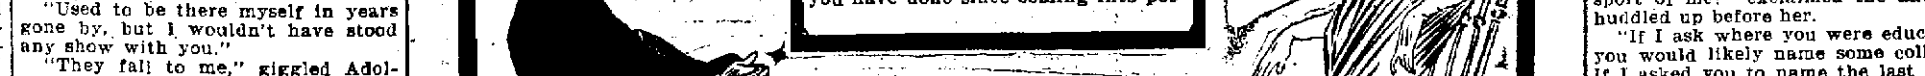

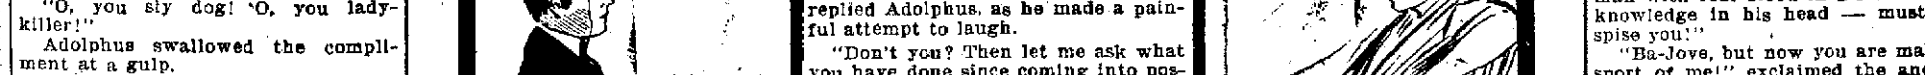

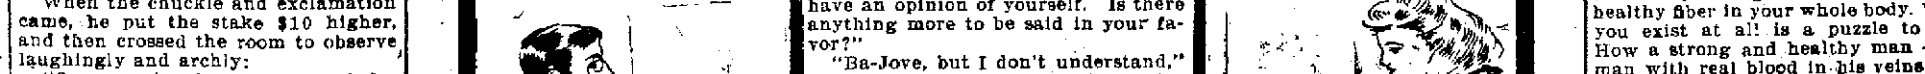

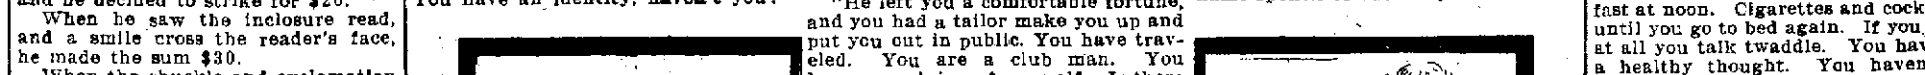

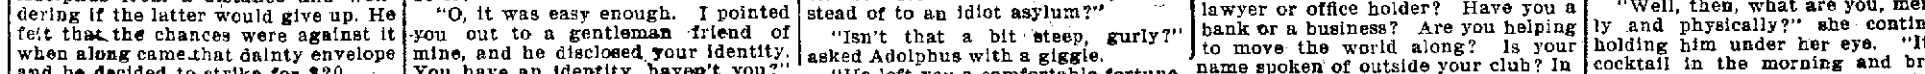

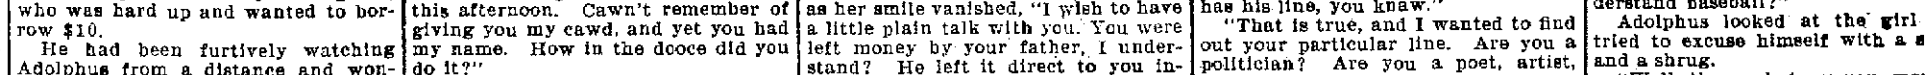

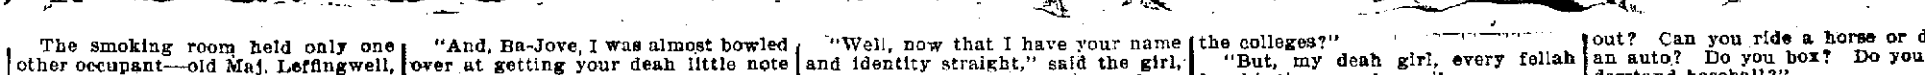

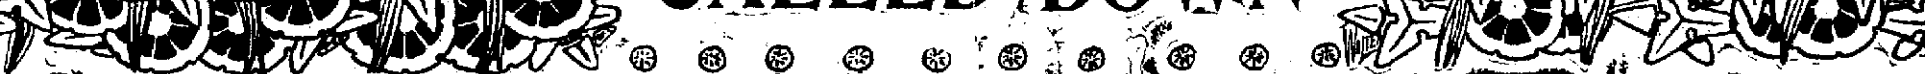

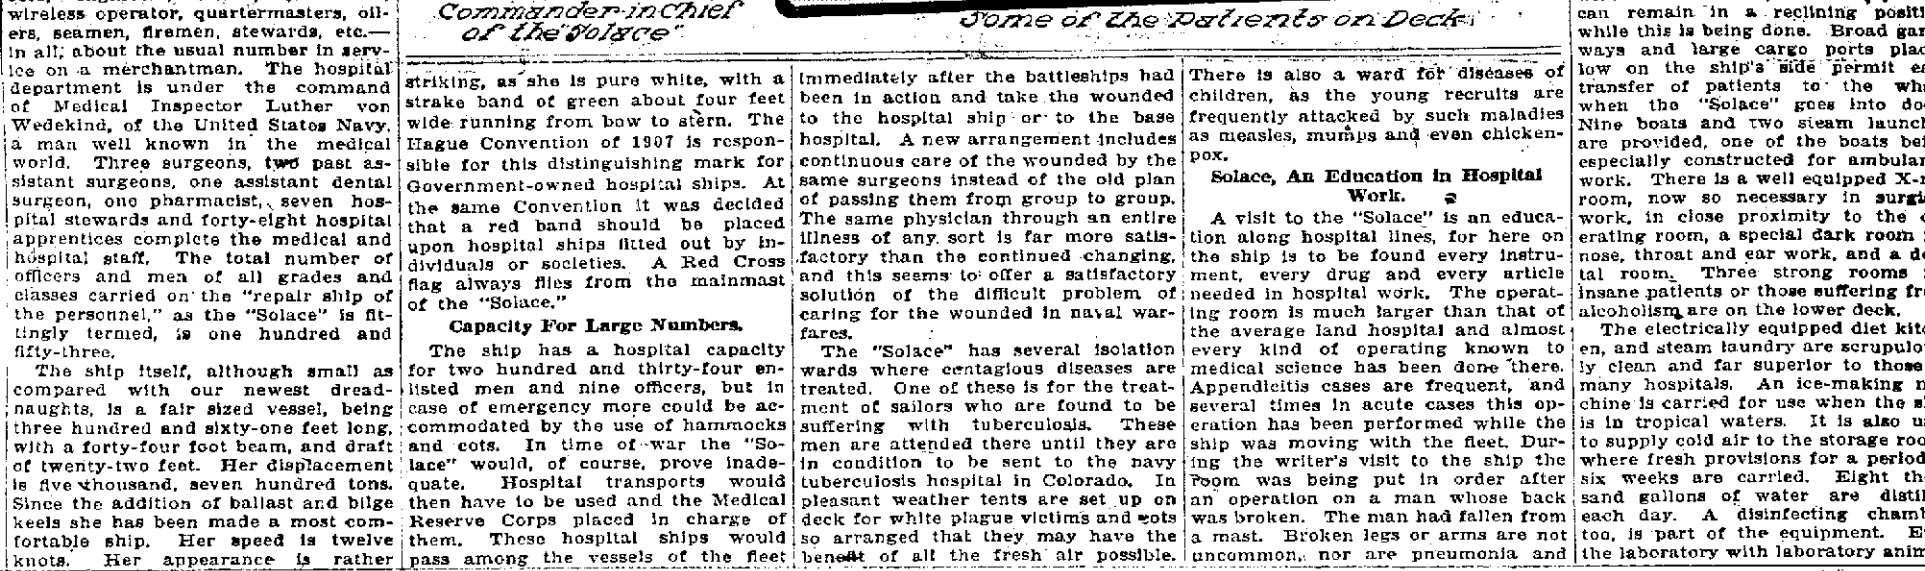

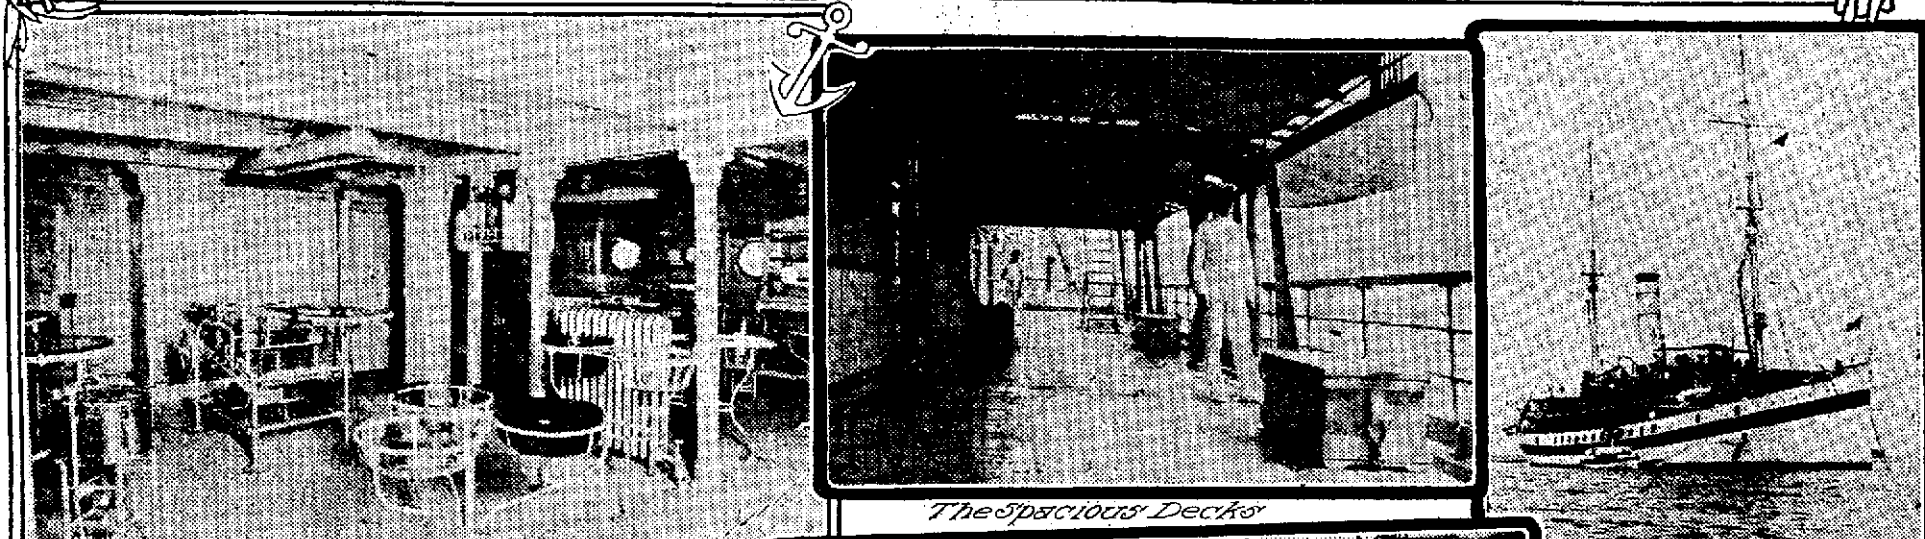

His health, too, is more carefully guarded than that of the sailors of foreign lands, for Uncle Sam's care of the bodily ailments of his defenders is above reproach of even the most ardent muckraker. In case of illness the United States sailor receives medical attention and hospital nursing equal to that of our best hospitals and free of charge. All the battleships have hospital wards, presided over by surgeons of marked ability. An illness of any sort may be treated there and even the most delicate operations performed, but the Government has gone even farther in the care of the health of its men by providing aside from the many Navy Hospitals on shore a complete floating hospital, where every imaginable disease can be given special care, and where operations can be performed while the floating hospital moves along with the fleet. This ship bears the appropriate name of "Solace," and is one of the few hospital ships in the world, and certainly the best equipped one.

How The Ship Was Named.

When the United States declared war against Spain they found that an ambulance ship was necessary, and after looking about for some time for a vessel suitable for this purpose they acquired the "Creole" of the Cromwell Line, and during that war she did valuable service. After the ship had been fitted up and commissioned it was decided that "Creole" was scarcely the proper name for the craft, but in the excitement of those days no one could think of a suitable name. Finally, Miss Long, daughter of John D. Long, who was at that time Secretary of the Navy, sent the word "Solace" to her father from Baltimore, where she was studying to be a trained nurse. The name was accepted as most appropriate and the vessel rechristened with this name which she still bears.

In 1908 the ambulance ship was entirely remodelled and refitted, and converted into an up-to-date floating hospital. Then came the quarrel between President Roosevelt and Rear Admiral Brownson as to whether or

THE NAVY'S FLOATING HOSPITAL

An Intimate Story of Life On Board the Solace, the Navy's Floating Hospital - Amusement Not Forgotten.

On board where tests and examinations of cultures are carried on. The amusement of the patient is not forgotten, as there is a large library of fiction and miscellaneous works. These books are on open shelves and may be used by the patients at any time. The men appreciate this and take the greatest care of the books. Almost any fine day a dozen or more convalescents may be seen sitting on the broad decks of the "Solace" reading the latest fiction or travel stories. They all agree that the treatment they receive could not be improved upon. "The surgeons do their best for us," said one young man who was recovering from a fall, "and the stewards are mighty fine fellows. I was helpless for a long time, and I know I was most contrary, but the stewards never seemed to notice it, and they handled me so gently—and Doctor von Wedekind, he is the best ever! See that steward over there?" he continued. "Well, he beats a female nurse for fixing you up so you can rest." All over the ship it was the same—every man was delighted with his treatment. "They even keep your teeth in order," said another. He went to work for Uncle Sam all the time," he continued. He held his pipe and strolled down the deck.

Surgeons Called By Signals.

The physicians of the different battleships make frequent visits to "Solace" to talk over the condition of the patients who have been sent from their ships. Many times they are visited by signal to come to the hospital ship to witness certain operations to see cases of special interest, and sometimes very important medical meetings are held to discuss methods of treating certain kinds of diseases. One look at the "Solace" with its bandaged and "in" drugs, the physicians would not get short necessary articles even in case of war for a very long time. This room is sort of medical store for the other ships of the fleet.

Like all Navy vessels, the "Solace" has a mascot, and Bobby, a goat, the pet of the men and an important member of the ship's company. In a company of persons as large as the personnel of the Atlantic fleet in the natural course of Nature death will occur. The "Solace" is prepared for this, as there is a refrigerating morgue hidden away beneath decks. In this morgue the remains of any of the men of the fleet who may die on a cruise are received, embalmed, and placed in metal lined caskets, and a request shipped to their next of kin at the expense of the Government.

CALLED DOWN

OLPHUS SKELLINGTON LAWSON sat in the smoking room of his club in a reflective mood. There were members of the club who would have denied that he could reflect, but they were prejudiced.

His age was 30, he was a healthy and ambitious man, he was interested in believing himself irresistible to the female sex. Within the last month he had encountered a certain strange young woman on the street no less than six times. Luck had given him the opportunity to put himself forward when she had narrowly escaped accident, and she had coldly thanked him, and then ignored his further existence. She had aroused his curiosity and piqued his pride.

That very afternoon, as he put himself in her path, she had looked him square in the eyes, her mouth had hardened, and she had then turned aside to ask a question of a peanut man, which would have been only too delighted to answer.

Adolphus Skellington Lawson was reflecting on these things with a dead stare in his mouth, when one of the club employees handed him a dainty envelope. His own name was written on it in feminine hand. He was not startled, but his reflections were interrupted and postponed.

The envelope was scanned from every point of view and then carefully opened. Within was just a note in keeping with the envelope. It read: "You may call at 8 o'clock this evening, at room 8, Studio building, The Girl With the Red Hat."

The smoking room held only one other occupant—old Maj. Lettingwell, who was hard up and wanted to borrow $10.

He had been furtively watching Adolphus from a distance and wondering if the latter would give up. He felt that the chances were against it when along came that dainty envelope and he decided to strike for $20.

When he saw the inclosure read, and a smile crossed the reader's face, he made the sum $30.

When the chuckle and exclamation came, he put the stake $10 higher, and then crossed the room to observe laughingly and archly: "O, you sly dog! O, you lady-killer!"

Adolphus swallowed the compliment at a gulp.

"Used to be there myself in years gone by, but I wouldn't have stood any show with you."

"They fall to me," giggled Adolphus.

"They have to, my boy—they have to. All you've got to do is to look at them. And by the way, can you lend me $40 until Monday? Yes? Thanks. Don't try to hide that bluish-dou, you reggie."

At the hour named in the note, Adolphus rang the bell at the number and place indicated, and a moment later he stood face to face with the Girl of the Red Hat.

She smiled at him. She invited him to enter and sit down. The room seemed to him to be the abode of an artist and a literary character, combined, but Adolphus was not paying as much attention to surroundings as to the young lady herself. He was pleased and flattered and in grinning mood.

"Ba-Jove, but when you cut me on the street the other day I was about ready to give up," he began as he tapped his teeth with the head of his cane and prepared to make himself very much at home.

"And, Ba-Jove, I was almost bowled over at getting your dear little note this afternoon. Can't remember of giving you my card, and yet you had my name. How in the dooce did you do it?"

"O, it was easy enough. I pointed you out to a gentleman friend of mine, and he disclosed your identity. You have an identity, haven't you?"

"Well, now that I have your name and identity straight," said the girl, as her smile vanished, "I wish to have a little plain talk with you. You were left money by your father, I understand? He left it direct to you instead of to an idiot asylum?"

"Isn't that a bit steep, gurl?" asked Adolphus with a giggle.

"He left you a comfortable fortune, and you had a tailor make you up and put you out in public. You have traveled. You are a club man. You have an opinion of yourself. Is there anything more to be said in your favor?"

"Ba-Jove, but I don't understand," replied Adolphus, as he made a painful attempt to laugh.

"Don't you? Then let me ask what you have done since coming into possession of your money? Has a dollar of it been invested in business or agriculture? Have you patronized any one outside of the tailor, the theater and the restaurateur? Have you bought a painting, a piece of statuary or a book? Have you given a dollar to charity? Have you contributed to scientific enterprises? Have you aided

ANNUAL BANQUET WAS ENJOYED LAST NIGHT

About One Hundred Members of New Church Attended Spread in Their New Building.

The annual banquet and reception of the Christian church was held in the new building last evening. About one hundred members of the church attended last evening. The banquet was a very interesting affair. A number of short talks following the report added to the enjoyment and profit of the evening. The first of these was by Mr. J. B. Reeder, who spoke of the church's growth and the importance of the new building. He said that the church had grown from a small group of people to a large congregation, and that the new building was a fitting place for the church to meet. He also spoke of the importance of the church in the community and the need for the members to be active and engaged in the church's work.

Some especially inspirational statements were given out. The Bible readings were given by Mr. J. B. Reeder and Mr. J. B. Reeder. The church members were very interested in the talks and the readings. The banquet was a very successful one and the members of the church were very happy to be able to attend it. The church members were very happy to be able to attend it.

LEAGUE CONTEST WAS HELD AT WHITEWATER YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

Whitewater, May 8.—The league or theatrical and declamatory contests will be held today. The Whitewater high school representatives, Ada Sievert for the declamatory and Arnold Dierfeld for the theatrical, will go to Jefferson today where the contest will take place in the evening. Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common bold-sulphur made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with eczema or any form of itching eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases and after two or three applications the eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

London's Foreign Quarter.
Soho, the district around which now centers the night life of London, is one of the most interesting parts of the old city. In the last 300 years it has changed from the most fashionable residential quarter through the stages of aristocratic bohemianism and business invasion to becoming the most distinctive foreign quarter and the nucleus of that little section where life begins at midnight and ends with early breakfast, says a writer in the New York Tribune.

Impromptu Gush of Sympathy.

Overland

A Revision of Prices Downward

FOUR years ago we marketed a much smaller car, than our 1914 model, for $1250. And this was a bare car—with no equipment.

Today we offer you a much larger car in every respect, refined right-up-to-date and completely equipped for only $950—25% less than our price four years ago.

Four years ago the wheel base was shorter, the tires smaller, the motor smaller, in fact every essential part of the car represented less value. In addition to that you had to pay extra for all of the equipment.

Today the Overland has a longer wheel base, a larger and more powerful motor, larger tires and complete equipment. In fact every individual unit is larger than heretofore. Yet the price is 25% under the market of four years ago; is 30% under the present market and has fully 200% greater value.

All of which is accounted for by our gigantic production which has been increased each succeeding season. For 1914 we will build 50,000 cars. And a production of this size is the sole explanation, for it makes possible the numerous economies which increase values and decrease prices.

Still, you argue, other manufacturers must have reduced costs and increased values just as we have. But they haven't.

Look around you. Think a minute of the cars you know of that have not reduced prices. Think of the cars that are about the same in specifications and price as they were several seasons ago. Then go further and think of the manufacturers who have raised their prices.

That's probably an angle you failed to consider. That's probably a point you overlooked. But it's important. Check our price reductions and car enlargements and refinements during the last four years. The facts will astonish you!

Then call on the nearest Overland dealer and minutely examine the 1914 Overland. It has a powerful 35 horsepower motor; it has ample five passenger capacity for family comfort; it has handsome and brilliant electric lights throughout—even under the graceful cowl dash; it has larger tires; it has a wheelbase of 114 inches.

There is a spacious body; luxurious upholstery; the finish is rich, beautiful and simple; the brakes are larger and stronger.

There are Timken bearings; the high grade Schebler carburetor; the magneto is a Splitdorf and the speedometer is a jeweled Stewart. Everything is standard—the world's best.

BUT THE PRICE IS LOWER THAN EVER.

And most advantageous of all, it is the most economical car on tires, gasoline and oil.

There is an Overland dealer near you. Phone him for a demonstration today.

The Evening Chat-Chat BY RUTH CAMERON.

ON ANTIPATHIES.

"I AM of a constitution so antipathetic that it consorts and sympathizes with all things. I have no antipathy, or rather idiosyncrasy in anything. These natural repugnances do not touch me."—Religio-Medici.

A certain good lady, who has a phlegmatic temperament something like that which the author of the Religio-Medici ascribes to himself, always hoots me when I grow nervous at the sound of a knife scraping upon tin.

"Nonsense," she says, "don't notice it. Don't let it make you nervous. Why I don't mind it a particle."

I chronicle this little household happening because I think it is typical. People who, like my phlegmatic friend, do not have these peculiar sense antipathies, are always prone to think that those who do have them are using their imaginations.

And worse than that I know some people who do have one sort of antipathy, but are so narrow, so intolerant, that they actually do not sympathize with those who have a different sort.

Now I protest that my feelings when I hear a steel knife scrape over silver or tin is not at all a fanciful feeling. It does not originate in my mind or my imagination. I think it is caused by the fact that the nerves of my ear are tuned to a certain pitch and the vibration which that knife starts sets them to jangling. I could not more control it by merely wishing to than I could stifle an effort of the will, a wireless instrument from vibrating in answer to another instrument.

When a man is color blind we do not accuse him of imagining himself to be blind at that condition. We simply realize that his eyes are adjusted to the various light waves differently from ours.

Have you not noticed how restless and usually becomes when anyone whistles near her. This isn't because the cat is vitally nervous, but because her ears are so attuned that the shrillness of a whistle really hurts them. In this same way I think all the antipathies of the sense should be accounted for.

Incidentally I find a comparison of these strange little antipathies very interesting. One friend is intensely nervous by the sound of a piece of cloth being torn in twain. I don't mind that at all, rather like it in fact. On the other hand she can sit in a room where someone is scraping a knife across a piece of tin and not even know that the dreadful noise is going on. Still another friend does not mind either of these sounds, but has to leave the room when her father scrapes out his pipe.

You notice that I say antipathies as well as of the sense of touch, for instance. One friend simply can't bear to touch flannel with the tips of his fingers. Now that is utterly incomprehensible to me until I translate it into the terms of my own keenest touch antipathy. I cannot bear to have when he does that the dry napkin across my tongue when he is filling a tooth. It gives me an uncomfortable feeling.

Antipathies are queer things, but like most queer things, interesting. I should think some of our psychological experts would write us a magazine article on this subject.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of twenty and have been keeping company with a young man about my own age. We went together for about a year.

We were not engaged, but there was an understanding between us. A short time ago he told me that he thought he was too young to keep steady company and he also told me that he didn't care any more for me. I nearly killed myself because I think so much of him. It seems sometimes as though I don't care what he does, but I don't care what he does in any way show him how I felt. I thought if I did he would think I was silly.

Did I do right in not telling him? I have had lots of chances to go with other fellows, but I don't care anything about them. I can't have a good time if I go with any other fellow. I am always thinking about him. Please tell me what to do because it seems as though I can't live like this much longer.

BROKEN HEART. My dear, be thankful that the man was honest with you. I think that he is right about his being too young to marry. He does not want you to continue a false hope and he knows that you are still young and will have chances to marry and—yes, really, let in love with other men if he doesn't care for you in the way you think you care for him.

Go out with the other boys. Make an effort to make other people happy. Remember that other girls have suffered just as much as you are suffering, and got over it. Some day you will meet a man who will fill your life wonderfully and you will wonder how you ever loved anybody else.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: You have helped others and I think you can help me. I haven't any mother to advise me about anything.

(1) What makes the skin on face rough and scaly off? Please tell me something to do for it.

(2) What will make the hair curly, as mine is straight? (3) What will make the hair grow longer and thicker? (4) Please tell me how to clean the straw of a summer hat?

THANK YOU. If your skin is not diseased it is probably itchy. You may be using a soap that cuts the skin, use a very mild soap, or none at all for a while, substituting oatmeal for the soap. Make a cheesecloth bag, put in a little oatmeal, close up the bag and use it like a wash cloth. Wash your face every other day. At night clean your face by gently rubbing it with a good cold cream, or even lard or mutton tallow. Wipe this off afterward. Wash with warm water and the mild soap or oatmeal every morning, rinse the face well in clear water, then dash cold water over the skin.

(2) Brush it a great deal and shampoo it about every three weeks. This will make it look fluffier, though it may not be curly.

(3) Every day or so rub a tiny bit of color oil or vaseline into the scalp; rub gently about 15 minutes.

(4) Make a paste of sulphur and lemon juice. Rub this into the hat and set in the sun to dry, then brush out.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Please suggest a name for a club of young girls between the ages of 13 and 16. (2) Also suggest a way by which we may make some money.

THE GIRLS. (1) Suppose you take the first letter of each of your last names and make a club name out of them? Then it will be very own name and cannot be copied by any other club.

(2) You might have a Progressive supper. Have the soup served at one of your homes, the meat served at another, the salad and another, the dessert at a fourth and the fifth house games and a general good time. You could do the cooking yourselves, charge 25 to 35 cents for the supper and have it announced in the neighborhood churches and school.

CREAMED SHAD—Make a white sauce by cooking together a tablespoonful of butter and a heaping one of flour and, when they are blended, pouring upon them a pint of unsalted milk. Add a few drops of onion juice, then pour slowly upon the beaten yolks of two eggs. Season with salt, pepper and a teaspoonful of minced parsley. Into this sauce stir a pint of cooked shad that has been freed of bones and flaked fine. Turn into a greased pudding dish, sprinkle with crumbs and bake for twenty minutes or until heated through.

APPLE PIE—Soak a half box of gelatin in a scant cupful of cold water for an hour. Peel a small pineapple and grate it; then cover with a cupful of sugar and let it stand for an hour before stirring the soaked gelatin into it. Turn all into a saucepan set within a pan of boiling water and stir until the gelatin and the sugar dissolves. Remove from the fire and let it cool, but not stiffen. Whip a pint of cream very stiff. Stand the saucepan containing the gelatin and the pineapple in a deep bowl of cracked ice and as the mixture stiffens, beat into it by the spoonful the whipped cream. Beat steadily until all the cream is in and the jelly is stiff and white. Turn into a glass bowl and set in the ice box for a few hours. Serve with rich cream.

STEWED KIDNEYS—Cut the kidneys in halves, remove all the fat and cover the kidneys with hot water, bring to a boil and drain. Cover with more hot water and again bring to a boil and drain. Repeat this process a third time. Remove them from the water, slice thin and thicken the gravy with two tablespoonfuls of butter. Return the kidneys to the gravy and when very hot add the pepper, salt two tablespoonfuls of mushrooms minced, two teaspoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce, a little lemon juice and two tablespoonfuls of sherry.

GRAM COMS—Into a quart of warm milk stir four eggs that have been beaten only a little, add a tablespoonful each of melted butter and sugar. Add now, gradually, three cupfuls of graham flour that has been sifted with a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder. Beat very hard for seven or eight minutes and bake in greased and heated gem pans.

SELL your house or any other piece of real estate you may have through the want ad. column—the cost is but a trifle.

The KITCHEN CABINET

O MATTER what your experiences have been, the various fragments of your life may be joined to make success, just as the smallest bits of glass are used in the most beautiful mosaic.

SUGGESTIONS.

A most delicious icing for a cake is one made of fresh strawberries. Crush a few, strain the juice and add a teaspoonful of lemon juice to make a richer color, and thicken with confectionery sugar to spread.

When making catchup this summer, try this method, and you will have a fine flavor and good color in the product. Peel the tomatoes, as usual, and cut carefully, removing the seeds as much as possible, for with them comes much of the water portion, which needs to be evaporated by long cooking. Then cook the tomatoes, and place in a colander to drain the thin part away. Then place over a bowl and press with a spoon until all the pulp is put through. This will be thick. The spices will be placed in a bag and the catchup will have a beautiful color and can be made in a very short time. The thin portion may be saved for sauces and soups, so that none need be wasted.

A little sugar added to a roast or stew will give a good flavor, and it will brown with a much richer color. It may be added in the water when basting meat or put into the pot roast.

SWEETER SOUR CREAM—When misfortune has marked you for his own, and the cream for your coffee is sour, try adding a very little soda, dissolved in a half teaspoon of water and then beat in a tablespoonful of sugar; mix well and it will, if the cream was not too sour, deceive the very elect.

The pleasure of trying new dishes is often spoiled by the thought of the dishes to wash. If we would go at once to the sink when a dish is emptied, turn on the water, wash and rinse it then, and put it aside, there would be very little to do when the cooking is over. The use of a cheap roll of paper in the kitchen is a wonderful saver. Wipe out all dishes greasy and otherwise, and save much dish washing and soiled dishcloths.

Women Worth While

MRS. FRANKLIN K. LANE.

By Selent Armstrong Harmon.

An easterner would know Mrs. Franklin K. Lane had men born in the golden west, until she told them it was in Elmira, New York, instead.

It isn't only because she married a Californian, adores her husband's native heath, and believes Californians are the salt of the earth that one thinks of the wife of the secretary of the interior as a Californian herself. It is because she embodies those very characteristics which the ideal daughter of the west always possesses in the imagination of the easterner. The heartiness of manner, the frank way of speech, even the physique of almost heroic build which one associates with the woman of the west, are Mrs. Lane's. Add to these her own enthusiasm for all things western and no wonder it is a generally accepted fact, even in Washington, where she has lived for six years past, that she hails from California.

Mrs. Lane is one of the women in the cabinet circle who had resided in Washington before her husband's appointment to the cabinet. The Lane came to the capital about six years ago, when Mr. Lane became a member of the interstate commerce commission. They took a spacious house on Wyoming avenue, next to that occupied for so many years by Senator and Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, and there they still reside.

Since Mr. Lane became secretary of the interior, this house has been the scene of some notable entertainments, but Mrs. Lane also continues to dispense there the same generous, but informal, hospitality which has made her for years past one of the most popular women in Washington.

Few women these busy times have more than a speaking acquaintance with the fine arts. Mrs. Lane knows music; she knows art; she tends the musical education of her young daughter, Nancy, with whom she spends some time each day at practice. And though her home and social duties do not leave her time for painting, she has far more than amateur knowledge and appreciation of pictures. She made a serious study of art abroad before she married and is familiar with the works both of old masters and contemporary painters. The drawing room of her home at Washington, furnished with the artist's eye for color values, is dominated by a few really fine and very valuable pictures. This love of art is a strong bond of friendship between the wife of the secretary of the interior and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

The Secretary and Mrs. Lane have two children, Franklin K. Jr., a lad in high school, and Nancy. Mrs. Lane's chief delight is in personally supervising her daughter's education. In order that the child may have time for music and much out-of-door play, as well as for lessons, she has a governess instead of attending public school.

Mrs. Lane is an advocate of equal laws for men and women. She is a member of the National Woman's Suffrage party, and after her marriage lived for a number of years in California.

History From An Every Day Life

This little sketch is past history. It is an unwritten law in the newspaper world that past history shall be blue-penciled at the desk. It NEVER goes down the spout.

As this concerns children it may escape the rapier-like point of the Editor's pencil.

Four little girls with the aid of their Mother prepared Easter baskets containing colored eggs. The children colored the eggs, bought the baskets; did all the work of preparation. They planned to sell them and with the money purchase a pair of rabbits that they had long desired.

The Mother encouraged them in their efforts, as it kept the children busy, and taught them the value of a dollar—its purchasing power.

She ran an ad to the effect that Easter baskets would be delivered at one's door, at a very moderate price. The little girls sold every basket and could have disposed of many more.

This is but another instance of where the want ad page helps us in our everyday life. Do you call on it for aid?

IOWA WOMAN TELLS OTHERS

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Carried Her Safely Through Change of Life.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—"At the Change of Life the doctor said I would have to give up my work and take my bed for some time as there was no help for me but to lie still. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and kept up my work and now I am over the Change and that is all I took. It was better for me than all the doctor's medicines I tried. Many people have no faith in patent medicines but I know this is good."—Mrs. E. J. RICKERS, 354 8th Avenue, West, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly headed by intelligent women when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

If there are any complications you don't understand write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

DON'T BE DECEIVED

If you feel exhausted and weak or tire easily, don't try to brace up on liquor or some patent medicine that will produce the same effect.

It is only temporary, and the reaction leaves you in worse shape than before.

What you want is more strength. Father John's Medicine is a pure food medicine; its ingredients are nourishing and strengthening. Nothing equals it as a tonic and body builder for throat and lung troubles.

Cautious of alcohol or injurious drugs. Get a bottle today; it will make you strong. Remember, it has been in use fifty years.

If you have any difficulty in securing Father John's Medicine from your druggist, write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., enclosing $1.00 for a large bottle by express prepaid.

COMFORTING WORDS

Many a Janesville Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting words to hundreds of Janesville readers.

J. W. Roberts, 22 Park St., Janesville, Wis., says: "For years I had trouble from irregular action of my kidneys. I had to get up at night and in the morning I felt tired out. My back ached and I had sore spots over my kidneys. I could hardly straighten after stooping over. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the Gazette, so I used some. I want to say that they relieved the pains and put my kidneys in fine shape. I don't have to get up at night and I feel fine in the morning. It is about ten years ago that I first used Doan's Kidney Pills and I have taken them off and on since. They have kept my kidneys and back free from pain."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMurray Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

THE PLACE OF HONEY-MOONS HAROLD MAC GRATH Pictures C.D. RHODES

"One song won't hurt her. She's made up her mind to sing. There's nothing for us to do but to sit tight."

The artist took the path that led around the villa and thence down by many steps to the village by the waterside, to the cream-tinted cluster of shops and enormous hotels.

Below, in the village, a man entered the Grand hotel. He was tall, blond, ruddy-checked. He carried himself like one used to military service; also, like one used to giving peremptory orders.

The porter bowed, the director bowed, and the proprietor himself became a living carpenter's square, hinged. The porter and the director recognized a personage; the proprietor recognized the man. It was of no consequence that the now arrival called himself Herr Rosen.

Herr Rosen. He was assigned to a suite of rooms, and on returning to the bureau, the proprietor squinted his eyes abstractedly. He knew every woman of importance at that time residing on the Point. Certainly it could be none of these. Himmel! He struck his hands together. So that was it: the singer. He recalled the hints in certain newspaper paragraphs, the little tales with the names left to the imagination. So that was it?

What a woman! Men looked at her and went mad. And not so long ago one had abdicated her in Paris. The proprietor threw up his hands in despair. What was going to happen to the peace of this bucolic spot? The youth permitted nothing to stand in his way, and the singer's father was a retired fighter with boxing gloves?

In the ballroom that evening that little son of Satan called malice aforethought took possession of Nora; and there was havoc. If a certain American countess had not patronized her, if certain forgotten implements of torture used by said son of Satan had not been leveled in her direction; if certain fans had not been suggestively spread between pairs of feminine heads, Nora would have been as harmless as a playful kitten.

From door to door of the ballroom her mother fluttered like a hen with a duckling. Even Celeste was disturbed; for she saw that Nora's conduct was not due to any light-hearted fun. There was something bitter and ironic cloaked by those smiles, that tinkle of laughter. In fact, Nora from Tuscany flirted outrageously. The Barone stalked and tore at his mustache.

"It does not matter, signorina." The Barone stared keenly at the erect and tense figure at the prima donna's side.

"You will excuse me, Herr Rosen," said Nora, as she laid her hand upon the Barone's arm.

Herr Rosen bowed stiffly, and the two left him standing uncovered in the moonlight.

"What is he doing here? What has he been saying to you?" the Barone demanded. Nora withdrew her hand from his arm. "Pardon me," said he contritely. "I have no right to ask you such questions."

It was not long after midnight when the motorboat returned to its abiding place. On the way over conversation lagged, and finally died altogether.

Mrs. Harrigan fell asleep against Celeste's shoulder, and the musician never deviated her gaze from the silver ripples which flowed out diagonally and magically from the prow of the boat. Nora watched the stars slowly ascend over the eastern range of mountains; and across the fire of his innumerable cigarettes the Barone watched her.

As the boat was made fast to the landing in front of the Grand hotel, Celeste observed a man in evening dress, lounging against the rail of the quay. The search light from the cus-

tache. He committed any number of murders, by eye and by wish. When his time came to dance with the mischief-maker, he whirled her around savagely, and never said a word; and once done with, he sternly returned her to her mother, which he deemed the wisest course to pursue.

"Nora, you are behaving abominably!" whispered her mother, pale with indignation.

"Well, I am having a good time. Your dance? Thank you."

And a tender young American led her through the mazes of the waits, as some poet who knew what he was about phrased it.

By way of parenthesis: Herr Rosen marched up the hill and down again, something after the manner of a certain warrior king celebrated in verse. The object of his visit had gone to the ball at Cadenabbia. At the hotel he demanded a motorboat. There was none to be had. In a furious state of mind he engaged two oarsmen to row him across the lake.

And so it came to pass that when Nora, suddenly grown weary of the play, full of bitterness, and distaste, hating herself and every one else in the world, stole out to the quay to commune with the moon, she saw him jump from the boat to the landing, scolding the steps. Instantly she drew her lace mantle closely about her face. It was useless. In the man the hunter's instinct was much too keen.

"So I have found you!"

"One would say that I had been in hiding!" coldly.

"From me, always. I have left everything—duty, obligations—to seek you."

"From any other man that might be a compliment."

"I am a prince," he said proudly. She faced him with that quick resolution, that swift forming of purpose, which has made the Irish so difficult in argument and persuasion.

"Will you marry me? Will you make me your wife—legally? Before all the world? Will you surrender, for the sake of this love you profess, your right to a great inheritance? Will you risk the anger and the iron hand of your father for my sake?"

"Herr Gott! I am mad!" He covered his eyes.

"That expression proves that your Highness is sane again. Have you realized the annoyances, the embarrassments, you have thrust upon me by your pursuit? Have you not read the scandalous innuendoes in the newspapers? Your Highness, I was not born on the Continent, so I look upon my work from a point of view not common to those of your caste. I am proud of it, and I look upon it with honor, honor. I am a woman, but I am not wholly defenseless. There was a time when I thought, I might number among my friends a prince; but you have made that impossible."

"Come," he said hoarsely: "let us go and find a priest. You are right, I love you; I will give up everything, everything!"

For a moment she was dumb. This absolute surrender appalled her. But that good fortune which had ever been at her side stepped into the breach. And as she saw the tall form of the Barone approach, she could have thrown her arms around his neck in pure gladness.

"Ob, Barone!" she called. "Am I making you miss this dance?"

"It does not matter, signorina." The Barone stared keenly at the erect and tense figure at the prima donna's side.

"You will excuse me, Herr Rosen," said Nora, as she laid her hand upon the Barone's arm.

Herr Rosen bowed stiffly, and the two left him standing uncovered in the moonlight.

"What is he doing here? What has he been saying to you?" the Barone demanded. Nora withdrew her hand from his arm. "Pardon me," said he contritely. "I have no right to ask you such questions."

It was not long after midnight when the motorboat returned to its abiding place. On the way over conversation lagged, and finally died altogether.

Mrs. Harrigan fell asleep against Celeste's shoulder, and the musician never deviated her gaze from the silver ripples which flowed out diagonally and magically from the prow of the boat. Nora watched the stars slowly ascend over the eastern range of mountains; and across the fire of his innumerable cigarettes the Barone watched her.

As the boat was made fast to the landing in front of the Grand hotel, Celeste observed a man in evening dress, lounging against the rail of the quay. The search light from the cus-

tache. He committed any number of murders, by eye and by wish. When his time came to dance with the mischief-maker, he whirled her around savagely, and never said a word; and once done with, he sternly returned her to her mother, which he deemed the wisest course to pursue.

"Nora, you are behaving abominably!" whispered her mother, pale with indignation.

"Well, I am having a good time. Your dance? Thank you."

And a tender young American led her through the mazes of the waits, as some poet who knew what he was about phrased it.

lome boat, hunting for tobacco smugglers, flashed over his face. She could not repress the little gasp, and her hand tightened upon Nora's arm.

"What is it?" asked Nora.

"Nothing. I thought I was slipping."

CHAPTER VII.

Colonel Caxley-Webster.

Abbott's studio was under the roof of one of the little hotels that stand timidly and humbly, yet expectantly, between the imposing cream-stucco of the Grand hotel at one end and the elaborate pink spaces of the Grande Bretagne at the other. The hotel hailed shoes of the Tendon (who wears his mountain kit all the way from Hamburg to Palermo) wore up and down the stairs all day; and the racket from the hucksters' carts and hotel omnibuses, arriving and departing from the steamboat landing; the shouts of the children and the barking of unpedigreed dogs—these noises were incessant from dawn until sunset.

The artist glared down from his square window at the ruffled waters, or scowled at the fleeting snows on the mountains over the way. He passed some ten or twelve minutes in this useless occupation, but he could not get away from the bald fact that he had acted like a petulant child. To have shown his hand so openly, simply because the Barone had beaten him in the race for the motorboat! And Nora would understand that he was weak and without backbone. Harrigan himself must have reasoned out the cause for such asinine plays as he had executed in the game of checkers. How many times had the old man called out to him to wake up and move? In spirit he had been across the lake, a spirit in Hades. He was not only a fool, but a coward likewise. He had not dared to.

To gain or lose it all.

He saw it coming; before long he and that Italian would be at each other's throats.

"Come in!" He called, in response to a sudden thunder on the door.

The door opened and a short, energetic old man, purple-visaged and hawk-eyed, came in. "Why the devil don't you join the Trappist monks, Abbott? If I wasn't tough I should have died of apoplexy on the second landing."

"Good morning, Colonel!" Abbott laughed and rolled out the patent rocker for his guest. "What's on your mind this morning? I can give you one without a fee."

"I'll take it neat, my boy. I'm not thirty, I'm faint. These Italian architects, they call three ladders flights of stairs!"

"Hat. That's Irish whiskey, and jolly fun. Want you to come over and take tea this afternoon. I'm going up presently to see the Harrigan. Thought I'd go around and do the thing informally. Taken a fancy to the old chap. He's a little bit of all right. I'm no older than he is, but look at the difference! Whiskey and soda, that's the racket. Not by the tubful; just an ordinary half dozen a day, and a dem climate thrown in."

"Difference in training."

"Rot! It's the sized hat a man wears. I'd give fifty guineas to see the old fellow in action. But, I say, recall the argument we had before you went to Paris?"

"Yes."

"Well, I win. Saw him bang across the street this morning."

Abbott muttered something.

"What was that?"

"Nothing."

"Sounded like 'dem it to me.'"

"Maybe it did."

"Heard about him in Paris?"

"No."

"The old boy had transferred his regiment to a lonesome post in the North to cool his blood. The youngster took the next train to Paris. He was there incognito for two weeks, before they found him and bundled him back. Of course, every one knows that he is but a crazy lad who's had too much freedom. The colonel emptied his glass. 'I feel dem sorry for Nora. She's the right sort. But a woman can't take a man by the scruff of his neck and chuck him.'"

"But I can," declared Abbott savagely.

"Tut, tut! He'd eat you alive. Besides, you will find him too clever to give you an opening. But he'll bear watching. He's capable of putting her on a train and running away with her. Between you and me, I don't blame him. What's the matter with sickening the Barone on him? He's the best man in southern Italy with fells and broadsword. Sic 'em, Towser; sic 'em!"

The old fire-eater chuckled.

The subject was extremely distasteful to the artist. The colonel soldier, whose diplomatically had never risen above the heights of clubbing a recalcitrant hillman into submission, baldly inferred that he understood the artist's interest in the rose of the Harrigan family. He would have liked to talk more in regard to the interloper, but it would have been sheer folly. The colonel, in his blundering way, would have brought up the subject again at tea-time and put everybody on edge. He had, unfortunately for his friends, a reputation other than that of a soldier; he posed as a peacemaker. He saw trouble where none existed; and the way he pitched up imaginary quarrels would have strained the patience of Job. Still, every one loved him, though they lived in mortal fear of him. So Abbott came about quickly and walked against the wind.

"By the way," he said, "I wish you would let me sketch that servant of yours. He's got a profile like a medallion. Where did you pick him up?"

"In the Hills. He's a Sikh, and a first-class fighting man. Didn't know that you went for faces."

Dinner Stories

A country man in a restaurant ordered roast lamb and the waiter bawled to the cook:

"Great Scott, mister!" cried the countryman, "I can't eat a bull lamb! Gimme some fried oysters instead."

"One fried oyster!" bawled the waiter.

"Get whiz, mister, one fried oyster ain't going to be enough. Gimme a dozen of 'em. Consarn these city eatin' places!"

POURING OUT THE WHISKEY

Life's Hopes and Its Opportunities Run Out With the Poison That Men Drink.

On the sloppy surface of any bar you might read spelled out the word—HOPE. Carefully and neatly the bartender with his towel wipes off the bar every minute or two—as he looks at you and your drinking. He is cheerful and pleasant always. He doesn't tell you what he KNOWS. When your hand shakes, and a little of the whiskey is spilled, he smiles, says it is all right, and wipes it off. He has simply wiped off a little spilled whiskey. You have wiped out a little of your remaining hope of success. You can't take hold of that bottle and be as good a man as you were before. Whiskey is a poison and the whiskey drinker poisons himself. Worse than that he poisons his family. He drowns with his own hope, the hope of his wife, his children, his mother, all of those that have a right to depend upon him.

trips. Mark Twain arrived at a small town. Before dinner he went to a barber shop to be shaved.

"You're a stranger?" asked the barber.

"Yes," Mark Twain replied. "This is the first time I've been here."

"You choose a good time to come," the barber continued. "Mark Twain is going to read and lecture tonight. You'll go, I suppose?"

"Oh, I guess so."

"Have you bought your ticket?"

"Not yet."

"But everything is sold out. You have to stand."

"How very annoying," Mark Twain said, with a sigh. "I never saw so much luck. I always have to stand when that fellow lectures."

"Your voice," said the captain, "is a sical director, 'leaves much to be desired.'"

"That's why I got so many encores," the singer replied.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

From different sections of our city are coming complaints about the children playing the doorbells of the neighborhoods. It seems it is considered, by the youngsters, the acme of a good time to sally forth after supper and in twos and threes, trip sofly to a door and practice a musical selection on the door bell.
As this is done without the knowledge of consent of the householders, it is necessary to say that said householders become a bit peeved? The way bells ring, sets one to wondering if it is Hallowe'en.
Now we all admit that children simply must have amusement. What we are not willing to admit is that it shall be someone else's expense.
There is a reason for everything, why is the reason that children of really good families think it a lark to go out and act like—you say it?
Is it the children's fault that such actions are allowed? Are the parents in any way to blame? Would a reading club, composed of the members of your family, be a poor plan?
It might keep our children of the im-presonable age of the streets. It might make them assets instead of liabilities, might lessen the work of our juvenile courts. We have a good library. For the children's sake let us parents use it.
Jansville has its slogans. Is there room for another? Or, is it a curfew
we need?
AN EVERDAY MOTHER.

Ornaments of the Oyster.

A kindergarten teacher, after explaining to her much interested class that birds have feathers, bears have fur, sheep have wool, etc., asked the question: "Now, who can tell me what oysters have?" A bright little girl, very eager to recite, answered:
"Crackers."—National Monthlv.

On The Spur of The Moment

Wealth.
A pipe, a book,
A place to sit
And watch the birds
Of summer flit
From bough to bough,
And warble lays
Of gladness brought
By summer days.
A hammock in
A shady place,
A chance to look
On nature's face
In admiration
Of her charms,
A mile away
From those alarms
We find so oft
Wherever we go
Where the tides
Of commerce flow,
A chance to stop
Beside the way
Retiring from
The worldly fray.
A chance to drop
The cares of life,
Forgetting all
Of worldly strife.
To have content
And easy mind,
And pleasant thoughts
Of human kind,
Enough to eat
And perfect health—
That's what makes up
Our dream of wealth.
Be Kind to Your Ancestors.
Ancestors will happen in the best regulated families. Speak kindly of them and treat them with respect,

no matter how painful it may be.
Do not poke fun at them, for an ancestor is no laughing matter. At the most unexpected moment he is apt to come back at you, bite you on the shin and put an everlasting cramp in your social aspirations, and ancestors certainly know the psychological moment upon which to wreak their terrible revenge.
We knew one lady, a perfect lady, who had always poked fun at her ancestors until she wanted to join the Daughters of the American Revolution, where an ancestry is absolutely necessary.
Then she began to treat them with considerable respect, calling them
"old dears" and "sweet old things" and all that, but it was too late. The ancestors thoroughly peeved over her unkind treatment of them in the past, got back at her with more force than propriety. She found five of them in jail when they should have been fighting for their country; three others shot for desertion, two court-martialed for robbing the commissary and one hanged for treason.
Only one of her entire Revolutionary ancestry treated her with anything like consideration. He was a square drummer with a Connecticut regiment, but he lost his army papers in some place from which they could never be recovered.
Of course, one cannot pick and choose her ancestors, or his'n either, and one has to take them as they come, just like measles or the shingles. They may not be quite as nifty or well-behaved as you could wish, but it should be recalled that they lived in a strenuous period for removed from our present effeccivilization. If you come across one who ran a gin mill or sold genuine imitation gold bricks, forget him, or touch as lightly upon him, as possible, for he is almost sure to have a long memory and will scarcely overlook a slight when you ask a favor of him. Treat your ancestors well.

You can have all the fun you need poking fun at the ancestors of your neighbors and it may be well to remember, incidentally, that we all at one time hung by our tails from the same coconut tree.
Uncle Abner.
I never see a feller that paid a whole lot of attention to the weather, that ever became the president of a railroad or a tust.
Every year or so you hear some felle that has bought an umbrella, but most people get 'em the usual way.
There are other ways to live to be one hundred and fifty years old. Besides smoking, clasts, but there are apparently a lot of fellers who don't believe it.
One of the poorest places I know of how to get a tip on a horse race is in a barber shop.
Elmer Jones says he will never be perfectly happy until he kin locate in a town where you kin buy picture postcards three for a nickel.
Hank Tumms says a woman seldom misses her husband while he is around. Hank's wife never misses him, for she has got flatiron throwin'
down to a science.
Pains of Dressing.
"She dresses with great pains."
"Yes, her shoes pinch, her corset is too tight and she frequently scorches herself with a curling iron."

AN ADAPTATION OF DUTCH COLONIAL—By John Henry Newson

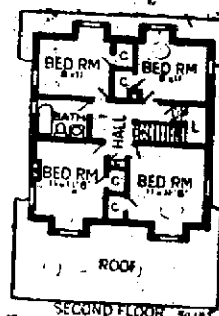

"Home of Character" No. 145

A design bespeaking quiet home comfort and one containing dignity and repose. The lower story is covered with wide siding and the gables and roof are covered with shingles. The large columns supporting the porch roof contribute largely to the beauty of the general scheme, as also the ornamental chimney.

NO. 145 FIRST FLOOR

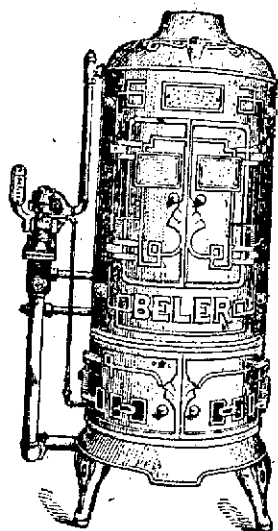

SECOND FLOOR

The basement is under the entire house and is built of brick, with shale brick or other appropriate brick used for facing above grade. The living room is entered in the center and occupies the entire front of the house, the dining room and kitchen in the rear. In the dining room is provided an alcove to contain a buffet. The second floor is reached by combination stairs from living room and kitchen, and has four good bedrooms, each with large closets, a linen closet and well appointed bathroom. The attic is finished in one large room.

This design, 26x28 feet, can be built for from $3000 to $3500. Thirty-three hundred dollars should build it, with a good grade of material and complete equipment, in most localities.

Any Gazette reader who desires further information concerning No. 145 should address "John Henry Newson, Homes of Character Dept., The Gazette." There will be no charge for Mr. Newson's answers.

The Beler Instantaneous Automatic Gas Water Heater

is really instantaneous. It supplies hot water anywhere in the house at a second's notice. Turn the faucet and the water runs hot; close the faucet and the gas goes out, thereby saving money. Let us inspect your house and tell you just how easy and economical it will be to install this heater.

GUARANTEE.—Should any Beler heater, after 60 days trial, fail to do exactly what we say it will—your money back without a word. Call and see it in operation.
